Advance Notes.—The Tubal Cain.—A party of seamen, who appeared to be 11 or 12 in number, came before Mr. Ingham, and asked his advice how to obtain payment of advance notes, given to them on joining the ship Tubal Cain. From their statement, it appeared they had joined the Tubal Cain in London, on a voyage to Australia, calling at Southampton, and had a very tempestuous voyage round the coast. On arriving at Southampton, they complained that the ship was insufficiently manned, and refused duty until more hands were shipped. For this they were taken before the magistrates at Southampton, and sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment in Winchester Gaol, with hard labour. They suffered much from the severe discipline there enforced. Since their release from prison, they had ascertained that their advance notes had not been paid. Mr. Ingham said the holders of the notes were the proper persons to move in this matter. One of the applicants said he considered that he and his shipmates had been ill-used, and that justice had not been done them by the magistrates at Southampton. Mr. Ingham said he had nothing at all to do with that; he could not review the decision of the magistrates of another court. Parker, an usher of the court, understood the applicants were sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for refusing to weigh anchor when the ship was ready to proceed to sea. A seaman: She was short-handed. Mr. Ingham: I can't re-open that matter. With regard to the advance notes, a question may arise, whether payment of them can be enforced owing to the men having violated their engagements. Who cashed the notes? Applicant: Their boarding masters cashed them. They were made payable three days after the Tubal Cain left the Downs, provided they (the seamen) sailed in the vessel, and they did so.—Mr. Ingham said the applicants had stated nothing which called for his interference. If the holders of the notes applied to him for summonses he would hear them, and dispose of their applications according to law, either by refusing or granting summonses. It might be that the men had been guilty of such gross misconduct as to forfeit payment of their wages. He could not say whether the holders of the notes would be entitled to payment by the owners or brokers after what had occurred.—The men then retired, and subsequently waited on Mr. Smith for his advice, and he said he could do nothing for them at all.—It may may be well to state, that the holder of one of the Tubal Cain's advance notes sued the broker on whom it was made payable in the City of London Small Debts' Court, on the 12th instant, when Mr. Smith, in the absence of Mr. Pelham, retained for the defence, submitted that, if the case was tried on its merits, it would be found that the holder of the note could not recover, as the man in whose favour it had been made had violated his engagement, and been sent to prison. The holder of the note would not admit this, and was anxious that the case should not be tried on its merits. Mr. Smith then urged that there was no proof of the note having been duly made, and no evidence of the captain's signature.—The Judge agreed with Mr. Smith, and nonsuited the plaintiff.—Shipping Gazette, Nov. 25.

CHINA.

Whatever may be the military results of the great Chinese insurrection, it is impossible to entertain any doubt of the moral revolution which has been effected of late years; and it is a subject of interesting enquiry to what causes are owing the unlooked-for change in the relations of China with the rest of the world. The original cause must, no doubt, have been the religious agitation which was begun no less than three centuries since, in consequence of the maritime discoveries of the Portuguese and other nations of Europe, who imported into the regions of the far East the seeds of a moral and religious code, and of a practical civilization very different to that which had prevailed for unnumbered ages in China and the surrounding countries. But, although the Roman Catholic missionaries were the first to introduce new principles and new ideas into the Chinese world, it is notorious that the fatal tendency of Jesuitism to meddle with the political government of the countries into which it finds its way counteracted to a great extent whatever moral effect had been produced by the preaching of the more simple doctrines of the Christian religion, by the adventurous friars who first trod the central flowery land. The governmental mind of China was offended and alarmed at the political success of a foreign band of priests, whose organization argued a foregone conclusion to conquer the empire, and bring it under their own sway; and, considering the enormous influence which an ancient system, founded upon the idea of paternal rule, had necessarily acquired among a numerous people utterly destitute of the individuality resulting from self-culture, and from the force resulting from the habit of combination and the interchange of intelligence, it is no matter of surprise that the Government of China should have succeeded in reclaiming the minds of the people to their ancient faith and rule, and that the early efforts of the Jesuits should have resulted in failure.

It was reserved for our day and for other modes of agitation, less directly political, to solve the great problem of the opening of China. But we had, ourselves, many a sorry disappointment to bear, and many a heavy blow to put up, with in the course of our crusade against Chinese ignorance, bigotry, and the accumulated force of immemorial viciousness. Partly the religious zeal of all denominations, partly our arms, but chiefly our free-trade principles, have triumphed over the cold dark barbarism of the Chinese; and the revolution which we witness with astonishment and delight this day is to be ascribed, not to any miraculous intervention of Providence, nor to any other unusual cause, but simply to the natural operation of those influences which, originally set in motion by missionary zeal, received potent aid and practical application from the opium war.

Had the insurrection taken its rise in the northern provinces of the Chinese Empire, and had the same general features of religious fanaticism—we use the term not in a reproachful sense—been displayed, something of a miraculous character might with some show of reason have been ascribed to the movement. But the lovers of the marvellous have no right ground of exultation when the real facts are considered; and so far from there being anything extraordinary or unprecedented in the Chinese revolution, we think the events that have come to light are the natural and irresistible sequences of the antecedent facts with which we were all familiar.

A very cursory retrospect of the history of the human race will bring to mind scores of instances of revolutions, political and religious, by no means inferior in magnitude, or fraught with less grand and important results. The eruption of a volcano which has slumbered for centuries, is calculated to dazzle and awe its immediate witnesses; but not the less certain is it that the train of combustible materials had been preparing for a lengthened period in the deepest recesses of the mountain. The same may be said of the Chinese revolution. It is partly religious and partly political. The prestige of the ancient superstition has been gradually undermined by the dissemination of religious dogmas favourable to political liberty and to the independence of the individuals; whilst the tyranny of custom and opinion was overthrown by the enlarged commercial intercourse resulting from the conflict of arms, which proved to the almost reluctant Chinese and Tartars the immense superiority of the outside barbarians, and the inherent weakness and worthlessness of the political system under which they were enslaved. Add to these, the dormant nationality of the pure Chinese race, and their hatred of the oppressive rules of their Mongol Conquerors, and we have all the elements of a national awakening, which waited but "the hour and the man." The hour came; the man appeared; and China shook herself out of her sleep.

Every detail of this great movement is of interest. And the opinions of those on the spot, who know the native character, its peculiarities and its tendencies, are of value. We have found, in our recent files of Chinese papers, the subjoined article, which throws considerable light upon the moral character of the revolution. We cannot join in the complete gratification which some have felt on religious grounds; we mistrust the purity of the Christianity of the insurgents; but we acknowledge with satisfaction and with hope the overthrow of Tartar prejudice, and the removal of Chinese impracticability.

(From the North China Herald.)

The moral and religious character of the Chinese Rebellion will receive additional light from the letter of Dr. Medhurst. A soldier of Tae-ping-wang's army, after being for two years a follower of the fortune of the new dynasty—at length recoiling from the moral restraints imposed upon his unsubdued passions—deserts to the imperialists two months ago, and at last joins the besieging camp off Shanghae. From the testimony of various missionaries who have conversed with him, he appears to be a man of little education and knowledge; but his account of the state of matters at Nanking may be regarded as that of a person who had no object in employing deception. The wonderful character of the movement, as we now gain a more intimate view of its detailed portions, equals or surpasses the conjectures of its most sanguine observers. It is a spectacle little short of the marvellous to picture even in imagination a vast host, which according to the narrator's statements must be great beyond any estimate hitherto made—drawn together by no hopes of plunder nor schemes of lawlessness—but everywhere along their line of march from the Southern provinces gathering new elements of physical and moral strength—men attracted by novel aspirations and sustained by the truths of religion—women fighting by the sides of men in the cause of civil liberty and religious propagandism—the ordinary bliss of domestic life sacrificed, and nuptial ties temporarily severed under the special emergency of the time, and in the undoubting prospect of the cessation of these restraints amid the consummation of impending victory. We hear of a course of moral discipline and a code of sumptuary laws—a common table—one common daily religious worship—a seventh day held sacred—services publicly held and sermons solemnly delivered. We see the smoking of tobacco and opium—the drinking of wine—profligacy, lust, gambling, lying, quarrelling, subdued by the force of daily example and law. Idolatry and superstition are put to flight, books of the Confucian, the Budhist, and the Taouist sects are alike proscribed:—The Christian books of Tae-ping-wang himself, or Christianised and adapted editions of the Confucian classics are alone allowed. No physical compulsion is employed (for our native eye-witness is clear on this point) in leading men to embrace the worship of one God (Shang-te); voluntary accessions alone swell their number; religious profession is a sine qua non of brotherhood; and if any persons object, they are free to go elsewhere. The Secret Societies, the plague of Chinese Government, found no congenial atmosphere in the religious host of Tae-ping-wang. They appear first to have doubted, rebelled, and at length opposed; and their prompt extermination is a proof of the moral determination and prestige of the chief of the new empire. The southern Capital Nanking (the same informant relates) is now called Teen-king—the "Celestial Capital"—no slight evidence of the intended policy of concentrating their forces in Nanking, and making it the central capital of the regenerated empire.

Such self sacrifice, such ardour in the cause of political and religious emancipation—such a superiority to the ordinary low grovelling passions and propensities of the Chinese—startle and surprise us alike by their novelty and moral grandeur. Such a movement is an intellectual—yea a moral—nay more a religious revolution such as the world has never witnessed: and we have such auguries of success as no ordinary cause could suggest. That it is the work of Satanic agency to break down idolatry and to build up the temple of morality and decorum—no one will easily believe. If it be the work of God himself (as our own belief decides with a growing bias) then we may assuredly leave its increasing maturity, growth, perfection, and purity in the hands of Omnipotence, and conclude that the day of grace and the period of hope for China have at length arrived.

The two questions naturally suggest themselves to the meditative mind:—1. How can foreign governments, with such facts as these before them, be induced under any circumstances to prop up by intervention the cause of the Manchow dynasty—which is in this case the cause of moral deterioration and false religion?—2. How is the opium traffic finally to be disposed of in the face of a band of native patriots and religionists pledged to its extermination?

We greatly mistake the generosity of the British merchant, if blindly and selfishly intent on his own wealth, he shrink from the only alternative of seeking in new channels of Chinese trade a substitute for the noxious drug which Tae-ping-wang views as the ruin of his country.

We greatly miscalculate the magnanimity of the Anglo-Indian Government, if they are not found willing to bow to the emergency, and seek in far more reproductive, though for the present less financially remunerative, sources of revenue a substitute and compensation for three millions sterling of the opium monopoly, sacrificed on the altar of Britain's Christian consistency and of China's moral and religious emancipation.

The same paper, in its issue of December 3rd, referring to the visit of the Ministre Plenipotentiaire de France to Nanking, observes—

Much speculation is naturally afloat about the trip of H. I. M.'s war steamer the Cassini to Nanking, with H. E. the Ministre Plenipotentiaire de France, M. Hourboulon on board, accompanied by Mdme. Hourboulon, and his Secretary M. le Comte de Courcy.

We can assure our readers from good authority, that the object of the visit to the seat of the New Dynasty is wholly pacific. It is desirable, now that we draw so near the crisis of what may prove the impending overthrow of a hated despotism, to obtain fuller information of the posture of affairs with that new power, that seems likely at no distant period to wield the sceptre over so populous an empire, and one, to all human appearance, soon to lead the van amongst the nations of the East. Besides these urgent considerations, it is of the greatest importance to ascertain the truth or falsehood of the reports that have been published in some of the European journals, in regard to the intolerance said to have been exhibited by the Patriots, against those who differ from them in their religious creed. This and many very pressing questions have to be investigated—so as to form a just conception of what may be expected from the hands of Tae-ping-wang and his supporters should be called upon to sway the destinies of this great empire—and we trust that the same moderation and unity of purpose that has so conspicuously shown forth in the united policy of France and Great Britain, on the Eastern difficulty of Europe, will equally illustrate and signalise the combined efforts of these two great European powers, when called upon to deal with a question of no less difficulty, and of far greater magnitude—and, as regards the welfare of mankind, of infinitely more vast importance—than preserving the integrity of the Turkish Empire.

INDIA.

BOMBAY.

Two items of news received by this mail have been kindly placed at our disposal by a gentleman in Bombay. The first is that Lord Elphinstone brings out with him as private secretary, Mr. Adam, a son of the late Sir Charles Adam. Mr. Adam was called to the Bar, some twelve years ago, and has been in very fair practice on the Northern circuit, but his health has lately required him to live principally in a warm climate, and he has resided very much at Nice.

The other piece of intelligence is that Lord Dalhousie has consented to remain another year in India, from the 1st of January, 1854.—Bombay Telegraph and Courier, Nov. 24.

Signor Antonio Maria de Costa, commander of the Portuguese brig Conceczo, was yesterday committed to the Criminal Sessions for trial, by the senior magistrate of police, on a charge of importing slaves into Bombay.—Bombay Gazette, Dec. 3.

Mr. Frere (of Scinde) visited yesterday the Central School of the Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Institution, remaining about an hour and a half. He put questions to the boys of two classes—chiefly in History and English Literature. Mr. Frere's remarkably subdued and gentle manner, and the kindness, the intelligence, and the modesty with which he conducted the short examination, have quite won the hearts it seems of the school boys; and we hope that they may have left on his mind an equally favourable impression. This, and the dozen or more of Branch Schools, male and female, belonging to it, are a wonderful charity to be supported by the munificence of one merchant, and to form but one, not the largest even, in a long list of his charities. We wish the proselytizers of whom Mr. Robinson complains, could manage to convert a few Christians up to Sir Jamsetjee's standard of citizenship.—Ibid.

We learn from the Poonah Observer, that young Holkur, the Rajah of Indore, and his family, visited Poona on Saturday the 3rd instant, to witness some of the operations of the Army of Exercise. He travelled strictly incognito—and requested that no honours should be paid to him. He arrived on the parade ground in the carriage of Lord Frederick Fitzclarence, and was accompanied by Mr. Le-Geyt, judge and agent for Sirdars.—Bombay Times, December 12.

PUNJAUB.

Matters remain pretty much in statu quo at and about Peshawur (our latest dates are to the 23rd November), except that Saadut Khan, and Dereea Khan, thinking they might take advantage of the absence of Colonel Cotton's detachment, had been heard of at likely to cross our frontier near Michnee, on a roving expedition. Major Chamberlain had, in consequence, been warned to hold himself in readiness to proceed into that direction, with two hundred sabres of his own corps, two horse artillery guns, and three hundred men of her Majesty's 53rd regiment.

It was expected that General Roberts would leave about the 1st December, and considered likely that the downward march of her Majesty's 32nd regiment would be delayed.—Lahore Chronicle, Nov. 26.

The following is from a Peshawur letter, dated November 26:—

"The most important item of news from this part of the world, is that the Afreedies have given in. The pass was to have been forced the day before yesterday, but they came in the evening before; I dare say you will hear more particulars from Muttannee.

Lieutenant Hyde, of the Engineers, is to have the charge of the fort and other works in the district; he has not yet arrived. We hear that positively a third European corps is to be sent here.

Sickness does not decrease much; the sepoys are still crowded in hospitals. Saadut Khan was said to be in the Khyber Pass, with 400 men. There was a shock of an earthquake felt here last Sunday evening, the 20th.—Delhi Gazette, November 30.

The following account of the late affair in the Kohat Pass, is furnished by an officer who was engaged in it:

"As anticipated, the Peshawur force is now out at one end of the Kohat Pass, where I expect they will have fine hammering with the Afreedees, and we came out to this end of the Pass on the 11th, sent the Kohat men up the Kotul, and entrenched them there unopposed. Next day the Afreedees, about one o'clock, attacked the positions and fairly and pluckily put the Bungush to flight, hunting them off the hill, killing 8 of them, losing some four killed, and say the same wounded. The Bungush, our people, were double the number of the Afreedees, and also entrenched on the crest of the hill. I do believe 50 of Coke's men would have easily held the place, but we had not a man on the hill but four orderlies of Coke's, and before we could get up, the business was over. All of us but Coke and Garnett, our engineer, were down the hill in camp. Coke and his orderlies, with one or two good men checked the Afreedies for a moment, and thus kept them from getting in with their swords amongst the fugitives, of whom many more would have been slain. Coke was wounded in the face in four places by bits of lead and stone, very nearly fatally, one piece running up the skull bone outside an inch or so, and then lodging on the bone without breaking it; he fell stunned, but recovered almost immediately, and his men led him off—the Afreedees chasing and firing. When half way down the hill two of his companies met him and checked the pursuit, and then when a little after they saw four other companies doubling up, and the guns getting into position, they turned back to regain their shelter at the crest of the hill, and thus the chase ended. Three of Coke's men were slightly hit."—Ibid.

A meeting was held at Peshawur on the 5th November, for the purpose of raising a subscription for a memorial to the late Colonel Mackeson. A monument over his grave had been resolved upon, and liberal subscriptions entered into.

N. W. PROVINCES.

We have been informed that the late Lieutenant-Governor of N. W. Provinces, has bequeathed the whole of his valuable private library to the Government college at Agra. A magnificent legacy this; furnishing further evidence of the warm interest which that statesman felt in the educational establishments of this country.—Indian Standard, December 2.

We are delighted to hear that the Governor-General has ordered the magnificent arches, which form the screen of the unfinished Mosque to the north-west of the Kootub Minar, to be put in thorough repair at the expense of the Government. The work has commenced already, with a promptitude which always characterizes anything that Lord Dalhousie undertakes. We have always looked on the dilapidated state of these noble arches as a disgrace to the Government of India. Lord Dalhousie has removed the disgrace. Delhi Gazette, December 14.

MADRAS.

We are sorry to say that the clear weather continues without any prospect of a change, and that the accounts of scarcity alluded to in our last issue pour in so abundantly as to create serious anxiety.—Madras Spectator, November 21.

THE AFFAIRS OF BURMAH.

We extract the subjoined letter from Prome, dated 18th November, 1853, 10 P.M.

"The prisoners here broke out of gaol this evening at or about six o'clock, P.M., heavy firing was kept up for a good hour—and the Ramgurh Irregulars charged in amongst the convicts. A great massacre was the result. I have just heard that about 40 prisoners succeeded in making their escape out of gaol. Of this number between 30 and 35 are returned as killed and wounded, and the remainder got scot free. One sepoy on our side (the sentry at the gate) was wounded rather severely in the rush.

All sorts of rumours here—one is rather startling, to the effect that an army of Burmans are between this and Meeaday. How they came there no one knows. Another large army is on the advance from Ava towards us. The Head Quarters of the 2nd E. B. Fusiliers are to remain in Prome, and the 1st will have to go to Meeaday.—Rangoon Chronicle, November 26.

Cholera continues its ravages in town, and, we regret to hear, that one of our European merchants was attacked with it, but happy to learn is now doing well. The filthy state of many parts of the town requires a little conserving, and trust it will be attended to.

In consequence of the prevalence of cholera, orders have been issued to supply the Goungs of districts, in town and country, with cholera mixtures, which the Civil Surgeon has been kind enough to promise to supply in any quantity.

The H. Co.'s steamers Medusa and Enterprise have been ordered down from their respective stations, the Mahanuddy taking the place of the former off the village of Thaget-mion, six miles below Myeeaday, and the latter's position being taken up by the Proserpine. The Enterprise is ordered down in consequence of the fall of the river, the authorities not liking the prospect of her having to stay up the river until next rainy season.

By the Fire Queen we have papers from Moulmein to the 30th ultimo, and from Rangoon to the 3rd instant. We have made a few extracts from them which will be found below. The former paper says that the rumoured plot of the Burmese to exterminate the British, has proved real, and that about twenty of the ringleaders are in custody. Suspicion of course attaches to the government at Ava; but we cannot do better than subjoin the journal of our own correspondent:—

Rangoon, November 23rd.—This morning was intended by the Burmese to have been the last of the British rule at Rangoon. An organised plan had been laid to surprise the garrison on the upper platform of the Pagoda this morning, whither several hundred men were to have gone under the guise of paying their offerings, (this being one of their offering days), and to have taken possession of the guns. A gun was then to have been fired which, denoting success, was to have been the signal for an attack on the civil treasury, and firing of the town and commissariat buildings. This plot was divulged to the authorities a day or two ago by a Burman, who once held some office under our government, but had been disgraced for misbehaviour, on condition of his being restored to favour. The information was of course guardedly accepted, but being soon after corroborated from other quarters at the same time, was considered too good not to be acted upon. All the guards were accordingly doubled last night, and Europeans placed on all the principal guards. This unfortunately attracted the attention of the conspirators, and the affair did not come off this morning in consequence. The civil and military treasuries were strengthened by European guards sent in the night quietly. So were the commissariat buildings. Patrols perambulated the stockade during the night, and in fact Rangoon was never so secure as last night. Two or three companies of Europeans were accoutred and sitting in their barracks out of view all ready to turn out, had the ringleaders been seen and detected this morning by the Deputy Commissioner, who was in the upper terrace watching for them; a signal was to have been given to the Flag Staff Pagoda, where a flag would have been hoisted, as a signal for a detachment of Europeans under Colonel Matthie, at the south gate, to make for the town, and capture every armed man. But all was needless, for the rascals smelt a rat last night, and their pluck failed them. The sequel of the story is, however, very satisfactory, for the two ringleaders are at present in Rangoon gaol. The Magistrate and Deputy Commissioner finding that the two gentlemen declined the execution of the work they had cut out for themselves, and fearing they might make a clean bolt of it, made for their residences, which are in different parts of the town. One was captured in his house, the other had just left his, and was off on the river; pursuit was given, and he was taken. One is a pawn-bearer and the other is a sword-bearer to the King of Ava. It will of course be very difficult to prove any connection with the Court of Ava, though there is not any moral doubt on the subject. About 1500 men had been enrolled to take part in the insurrection; several men armed with daos were seen going about Kemendine, some of whom were captured. It is not likely that anything of the sort will be attempted again. The precautionary arrangements, both civil and military, were excellent, and had the conspirators not got scent last night that we were prepared for them, they would have been beautifully trapped. This unsettled state of things will prevent any more troops being sent away just now from Rangoon. A company of the 1st Madras Fusiliers arrived the day before yesterday from Bassein, a place which it is said the Governor-General will visit. This playful little freak of the Burmese has produced a pleasant excitement, and has proved nearly as good as a ball. It would serve the Burmese right if they were prohibited (the male portion) from visiting the great Pagoda at all. Allow as many women and children to go as you please, but no treacherous scoundrels who would conceal a dao under their loose wrappers and spiflicate all the sentries with the greatest pleasure imaginable. The chief design was to possess the upper terrace, where the guns are, and whence the rest of the place is commanded.

Captain Dallas, with a detachment of the 80th, went off to Kemendine, where an attack was also intended; eight armed men were taken prisoners and lodged in military custody.

December 2nd.—Two companies of the 40th regiment N. I., arrived from Prome a few days ago, with two officers; the whole of the men and both officers are sick. This is the detachment that was so prostrated by fever at Tomboo; the men are very slowly recovering. The last steamer brought down a detachment of the 51st K. O. L. I. for Prome. Sickness is, alas, again at work at Prome. The 2nd Fusiliers are losing men fast, and several officers are sick. The country near Prome is perfectly quiet.

The prisoners effected an escape from the gaol there, and were even more roughly handed than their brethren at this place, for upwards of 20 were killed and about 40 severely wounded. The discomfort of the prisoners is said to be such as to induce them to prefer the almost certain death attendant on an attempt to escape, than a continuance of their sufferings. The error is on the right side. The object in most places seems to be to make prisoners more comfortable than the well-behaved honest poor.

Sir John Cheape is expected to arrive to-day, his health has been failing him lately. A very grand dinner came off on Saint Andrew's night, given by the sons of old Scotland to their friends at Rangoon. About 80 gentlemen sat down to dinner, which was most amply provided. Owing to the indisposition of the gentleman who was to have been chairman, and one or two other sons of the good saint, the party did not go off with quite that eclat it would have done. There was one little mistake which was amusing. A gentleman holding a high official position here was observed seated next to his own head clerk; certainly there was a hiatus between them caused by five or six vacant seats. How the said karanie came to be invited is curious. However, these little petty differences of station are overlooked by Free Mason Societies. It is as well to observe them at public dinners. The Queen, the Royal Family, and the Governor-General were drunk with all the honours. Then followed the health of Captain Phayre, the Commissioner, who proposed the health of the merchants of Pegue, in a short speech in which he argued that the resources of this interesting country could be alone developed by them. "The Army and Navy" was responded to by Major Neil: "The land we live in," by Captain Sparks, in a very neat and appropriate speech. The party broke up at a late hour.

The following, dated from Rangoon the 2nd December, is from another correspondent:—

"The Fire Queen will leave Rangoon to-morrow, and will take in her mail bags certain numbers the only newspaper published here. In that of the 30th November will be seen an article giving what the editor terms, a correct picture of our present position in Pegue:' this will, of course be republished by respectable journals in India, be circulated throughout the empire, and go home to England.

"The person who edits the Rangoon Chronicle asserts that there is a large Burmese army between Meeaday and Prome; that Tonghoo, Shuaygheen, Sitang, Henzadah, and Pegu are occupied by garrisons too weak to defend themselves if vigorously assailed; that a bold attempt would have been made by the Burmese to take the Dagon pagoda on a given day; that, though some of the conspirators have been apprehended, the philosophical editor was well aware of the existence of another plot, which, he tells us in his own elegant phraseology, he expected would "come to a head" before the world could profit by the results of his lamp-oil labours! In another part of the same issue of his paper, he informs the uninitiated, that the officer commanding on the Dagon pagoda had "issued out orders, late in the afternoon of the day before yesterday, to have the whole of the troops under arms during the night," from apprehension of an attack.

"Being myself accurately informed of the true state of the case on every one of the above points, I have the pleasure to assure the public, especially those interested in the affairs of this province, that every one of the foregoing assertions is incorrect, and, with the exception of conspiracy No. 1, utterly false. With respect to this so called conspiracy, the facts are briefly as follow: There are certain lawless individuals, some of them subjects of the King of Ava, naturally averse to our rule, who reside in Rangoon. These people would like very much to be Governors of Rangoon and Prome; and not at all object (some of them), to accept office, as Lieutenant Governors at Bassein, Sitang, and Shuaygheen. So, by way of making their first approaches, after eating their napee, and sharpening their daos, they must have proposed among themselves to take the Dagon pagoda! I say must have, because a good many people told the Commissioner that such was undoubtedly their intention. But, as no proof has as yet been forthcoming, that the conspirators had made any preparation for carrying their designs into execution,—collecting arms, and enlisting men, and by showing their ability to do what they are said to have threatened; of their being authorised to attempt such a coup, either by the Court of Ava, or any one else; and, if they had succeeded, of the possibility of their holding the pagoda for a longer period than would be required to bayonet the party to a man; we may infer that, if any conspiracy existed, it was entirely of a different character to that portrayed in the Rangoon Chronicle's "correct picture;" that it was, in fact, the vain vaunting of a few restless and hostile spirits, whose object was attained by exciting terror among, and undermining the confidence of, our new subjects, the poor Peguers, none of whom have been found to have participated in the scheme, or to have sympathised with its originators.

With regard to dacoity, I am happy to be able to inform you that at present there is none in Pegue of the formidable character, with which the exploits of Meeahtoon have dignified the world, and of the nature which the newspaper of this place affirms it to possess. Even petty robberies, which have always been so prevalent in Burmah, have decreased to a great extent lately. It is quite possible that an unprotected boat passing between Meeaday and Rangoon, may be plundered; but this does not happen often, though boats are constantly down from and passing up to Prome. A rigid police is, however, much wanted; and when this is once established on an efficient footing, and it will be very shortly, you will hear no more of dacoity in Pegue.

There is also another want in this country, and a very pressing one; I mean, a well conducted newspaper, with an honest editor, who is a gentleman, who will chronicle events as they really happen, and describe facts without distorting them—either for the sake of exciting a false interest, or of serving the purposes of self-interested people. At present we have nothing of the kind.

Mr. G. D. Wilkins, Commissioner for settling British claims in Burmah, closed his office on the 24th November.

The H. Co.'s steamer Nemesis was in dock undergoing some extensive repairs. This vessel, after coming out of dock, was to wait the arrival of the Governor-General.

The H. C. I. S. Nerbuddah, with flat Sutledge in tow, having Nos. 2 and 10 Co.'s or Head Quarters of H. M.'s 51st K. O. L. I. on board, arrived from Prome yesterday evening.

Major H. Fraser, Commanding Engineers, Burmah Field Force, proceeded to Pegu yesterday morning in a Burman loung or race boat.

By the arrival of the Indus we have been put in possession of the following from Meady:—

An ambassador had arrived at Meady on the 20th instant, with a letter addressed to the Commissioner of Pegue from the King of Ava. The letter is in reply to another which Capt. Phayre had written some time ago, demanding the restoration of one of our messengers. The King in his reply repudiates all knowledge of the man—he never saw him, nor did he ever receive a letter from our Commissioner.

The Priest who had arrived from the capital has been authorised by his Majesty of the Golden Foot, to arrange matters with reference to the "boundary question." The above items are merely a few gleanings from our letters which arrived just as he were going to press.

The Ambassador mentioned above arrived in the Indus, and proceeded with his credentials to the Commissioner.

SCINDE.

We hear that Mr. Frere, the Commissioner in Scinde, proposes abolishing the Fair at Sukkur, or, perhaps we should say rather not to propose to hold the fair there as announced last year. Now Shikarpoor is to be proposed as the site, and we shall be glad to hear that it answers better.—Bombay Gazette, December 12.

From the Scindian we learn that no fewer than seven officers of the 15th Regiment are under arrest, viz. Lieutenant Colonel Gidley, Lieutenants Thompson, Laurie, and Comyn, and Ensigns Fraser, Loft, and Hammond.—Bombay Times, December 12.

We understand that Government have at length decided on attempting to improve the harbour of Kurrachee. We noticed shortly in our issue of the 11th August last, a pamphlet on the subject, being copy of a letter addressed to the Commissioner in Scinde by Mr. Hardy Wells, who is the first person, we believe, that has come forward with definite proposals on that subject, which proposals we will take another glance at. The great principle that is to guide Mr. Wells in his scheme is 'using the best means of securing an equality of velocity in two streams, and so directing their flow that, mingling at a proper angle, they may unitedly find their way to and over the bar.' But using the best means, as we all know, does not always secure the object aimed at; but Mr. Wells anticipates no such failure. His 'main proposition is to make the channel from the mouth of the Sugaree river as efficient as possible, as far as length and breadth is concerned,' and to effect this he proposes to construct a Dock right across the mouth of the said river, which, according to his own account is a broad, shallow stream, and very liable to be flooded, and indeed was so not long ago. How the formation of the new channel is to give entrance to the Dock is not quite clear. The Dock is to have gates on the north and south; the north gate is to open into the river Sugaree, and the south into the new channel. The south gate is to be fifty, and the north gate thirty feet wide, and the sills are to be twenty feet below high water mark. To prevent the Dock 'silting up' the tide is ;to be admitted through it into the Sugaree river, and Mr. Wells very pithily remarks, 'it is perfectly impossible to contemplate how high it will flow.' No doubt, and as difficult perhaps to say what the water may bring back with it—much more than it took up we should imagine, when it is allowed to re-pass the gate through the Dock at three quarters ebb—as it is to do to clear the silt from the Dock, and keep the entrance channel clear also. This channel, we should notice, is to have a depth in the centre of 25 feet at high water mark, with a fall of a foot in the mile. The banks are to be artificially formed at first, with a slope of ten to one, and the channel is to be five hundred feet wide at top; but that it will have the particular effect Mr. Wells anticipates and wishes, there is strong reason to question. There are several other proposals brought forward, but after all the main point to be gained is the removal of the bar, or a portion of it at least, to give a clear entrance to vessels; and we cannot think that the construction of such works as Mr. Wells has proposed are at all necessary. With respect to the practicability of constructing such works there can be no doubt, but we should be sorry to have to answer for their efficiency. We cannot help thinking that Mr. Wells had not one particle of accurate information to guide him, Mr. Wells has not entered into details, nor have we, but there are several grave questions not matters of detail, which ought to have been considered before proposing to dam up a river such as the Sugaree is said to be, a river which, broad and open as it now is, is liable to be flooded, and to cause immense mishief. Mr. Wells says the flooding is caused by the bad outfall. We cannot contradict him, because we have no accurate information as to the present nature of the outfall, but it is difficult to conceive how building a dock, wall, or a dam, as it really would be, across the mouth of a broad and shallow river, with only an opening of 30 x 25 = 750 square feet, could improve or increase the outfall, which is the same thing, allowing at the same time that it is being filled from below to scour out the Docks and entrance channel? Nothing whatever but Mr. Wells's assurance that with his improved channel, and the bed lowered as proposed, he could deliver more water from the river than now flows from it into a reservoir three hundred feet square. Mr. Wells admits that his plan is composed of rough notes and observations taken during his morning rides, assisted by some charts. It is clear that Mr. Wells has made nothing more than an eye survey of the different localities he speaks of so freely, and had not a single level to guide him in forming his opinion of the practicability of carrying out his project to any useful result. The very idea of relieving a flooded river by making use of a reservoir 300 feet square and 15 feet deep, shows how little thought and judgment have been brought to bear on a question involving so many difficulties. Then, again, what effect could be supposed to arise from using this reservoir to flush the channel, and remove or keep down the bar, the former between two and three miles in length, and the latter at least three miles distant.—Bombay Times, December 2.

CHILE.

We translate from the Diario of Valparaiso the following remarks on the growing prosperity of the country:—

Since the country has been delivered from party contention, it has been enabled to devote itself earnestly to industrious undertakings, and the Government has taken advantage of this favorable state of things and of the flourishing state of the revenue, to dedicate its labours and considerable sums of money to the furtherance of popular education, and to the material improvement of the country. Several bridges are being constructed over the rivers of the south. Roads are being made and repaired in various directions, from which great advantages will result in a short space of time.

The Government is deeply attentive to the question of commutation of tithes; and some steps have been taken to facilitate the suppression of this heavy burthen on agrarian industry. When this heavy and pernicious impost shall have been removed, and when the internal communications of the country have been rendered easy and inexpensive, the breadstuffs of Chile will become the cheapest in the world, and will find their way to distant markets hitherto unknown to our farmers and traders. The fertility of the soil and the low rates of wages justify the highest hopes in this particular. Double the breadth of land is under cultivation this year that was sown last year, and the crops generally present a most favourable appearance. It is to be expected that the price of wheat will fall speedily, and that American flour will consequently not come to the markets of the Pacific, to which it was originally attracted by the fabulous rise in price occasioned by the settlement of California. So soon, however, as the Chilian farmers and traders are content with small but certain profits, the competition of the Americans ceases, and Chili will become the exclusive purveyor of wheat and other cereals for the Californian markets.

The mines of silver and copper are yielding great results, and the least productive promise to improve. The coal produced is of improving quality, and the value of the labours of the miners had risen fully fifty per cent. The prejudices against Chilian coal are disappearing, and many of our establishments, foundries, and steam-vessels, prefer it to English coal on account of its great comparative cheapness. This new branch of industry promises, therefore, to become a source of wealth to the nation.

The political condition of the commonweath is being ameliorated, and the population is rapidly improving.

The Railway Commission was busily engaged in the necessary surveys.

A new township had been formed at San Antonio, to the southward of Valparaiso.

The Archbishop of Santiago had commenced the visitation of his diocese. He is accused of fanatical tendencies.

A society of printers had been formed for mutual protection in Valparaiso.

The Peruvian Government has made large reciprocal concessions in favour of Chilian vessels.

INSOLVENT COURT.

MEETINGS TO DAY.

In the Estate of Thomas Brett, a first meeting, at 11 o'clock.
In the Estate of David Howell, a certificate meeting, at noon.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Wednesday.

Before the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. Arkins, Weekes, Allen, Egan, and Wingate.

Eleven persons had been apprehended for intoxication in the streets; one paid 40s. at the lock-up, and the remainder were sentenced in 20s. penalties.

The general charge-sheets presented a list of 26 prisoners, several of whom were remands from previous days; the majority of the remainder were for disorderly conduct, who, on conviction, were sentenced according to the nature of the offence, from a 10s. penalty to 14 days imprisonment.

A female, named Thurlow, was convicted summarily of having stolen two pecks of corn, of the value of 4s., the property of Messrs. Furlong and Kennedy, Dickson's Mills, and was sentenced to pay a penalty of 20s. or to be imprisoned for 14 days.

Frederick Marble was, on Monday morning, apprehended by Sergeant John Darby, of the Royal Artillery, under the following circumstances: between 9 and 10 o'clock, Darby saw the prisoner pulling a boat in Darling Harbour, accompanied by a man and a woman; presently after, he saw the man and the woman in the water, whether they had fallen or been pushed out of the boat he could not say, but prisoner, instead of endeavouring to rescue them, pursued his course until he reached the Market wharf, where he landed; an officer in charge of a man of war boat, ordered witness to apprehend the man, which he did, and brought him to the office; prisoner was surrounded on the wharf by a number of men and women, who were pelting him with stones and other missiles, and he had some difficulty in rescuing him from their fury. The man and woman were rescued from a watery grave and brought to shore; the female fell into fits, and for some time her recovery was considered exceedingly doubtful. Prisoner was remanded for further evidence. Prisoner, it appeared, was a seaman on board the ketch Henry, between whom and the master a quarrel and a scuffle took place, which resulted in an agreement to meet on shore and fight it out. The female was a friend of the skipper, and it was suspected that Marble had purposely thrown her overboard, in order to be revenged of his superior. The woman, however, sufficiently recovered to be able to give evidence on Tuesday, when she deposed that she accidentally fell overboard. The further hearing was postponed until to-day, for the evidence of Thurstor, who, however, did not appear. Mr. Dowling said that this was a novel case, and he had in vain searched the books for one which he might take as a precedent. Looking at the whole of the circumstances, it might be that he (prisoner) was impelled by fear of the captain, to make the best of his way to shore, instead of putting back to take up the people he was ordered to bring on shore. He could not see that there was sufficient evidence to send to a jury, and therefore he discharged the prisoner from custody.

Thomas Bamford was on Monday evening apprehended by Inspector Singleton, on a charge of embezzlement. He derived his information as to the charge from the Victoria Police Gazette, where also Bamford was minutely described; he also himself admitted that he was the person alluded to, but in reference to the charge said that he was not a servant but a partner, and that a settlement of accounts would show that the concern was indebted to him; he was charged with having embezzled the sum of £350, the money of his employer, Solomon Pitchforth, of Melbourne; he (Singleton) had no warrant for Bamford's apprehension. Bamford was discharged, but immediately thereafter again apprehended, a warrant having been issued by Mr. M'Lerie for that purpose. Thomas Bruff, late of Melbourne, identified the prisoner as Thomas Bamford; at Melbourne, three weeks ago, he saw Solomon Pitchforth, who requested him, if he should see Bamford in Sydney, to give him into custody; a reward of £30 is offered for his apprehension. Prisoner was then remanded until to day, when Mr. Thomas Nelson, lately from Melbourne, identified the prisoner as a person he had seen in Mr. Pitchforth's establishment. Mr. Dowling remanded the prisoner to gaol nominally for eight days, but really until he shall have communicated with the authorities at Melbourne, either to send for the prisoner or to forward evidence for his prosecution here. Bail allowed in £100, with two sureties in £50 each.

George Walter Evans, in custody on three charges of obtaining goods and money by false pretences, was further remanded.

Michael Maher, a tailor, was charged by Bridget, his wife, with having unlawfully deserted her, leaving her with three children without the means of support. Mrs. Maher deposed that between three and four years since defendant deserted her in Ireland, and immigrated to this colony; in consequence of letters from him, transmitting money, and requesting her to join him, she left home and arrived in Sydney on the 13th ultimo; he brought her ashore, took her to a lodging, and after three days told her to go about her business, to get her own living, and that he would find an old woman to take care of the children; she objected, after coming this distance with her children, to leave them—said he might as well keep her as pay any other woman. On cross-examination by Mr. Roberts, she said he gave her some money, which was not yet expended. Mr. Roberts submitted the complainant was out of court on her own showing, having at present ample means for immediate necessities, which she had received from her husband. Mr. Dowling refused to discuss the case, but adjourned it for fourteen days, admitting the defendant to bail in his own recognizances for his appearance.

Ann Kendall once more made her appearance before the Bench for neglecting and illtreating her child, only a few months old, and on conviction was sentenced to be imprisoned for three months, in default of finding sufficient sureties to be of good behaviour.

There were sixteen cases on the summons list, but none of any interest. There were but three convictions—James Arthur, a publican, for allowing a drunken woman to remain on his premises, was fined 40s., with 26s. costs; William Crindell, for an assault, was fined 40s.; and a female named Drew was fined 40s. for using obscene language.

WATER POLICE.

Wednesday.

Before Mr. Rowand Ronald.

Screman, a seaman belonging to the Rhone, who was remanded from the previous day, pleaded guilty to the charge of desertion after being identified by the captain of the above vessel. The bench directed him to be sent on board, and ordered that 40s. be deducted from his wages in the shape of a reimbursement of a like sum paid by Captain Snow as a reward for his apprehension.

James Landsay, a deserter from the Cheapside, and Peter Cocwitch, a deserter from the Europa, were brought before the court, charged with desertion, but there being no person to prosecute, in consequence of the vessels having sailed, they were dismissed.

James Kirwan was brought before the court on suspicion of being a runaway. Constable Harris, of the District Police, deposed that on Monday last he apprehended the prisoner in the outskirts of the city. Prisoner was unable to produce any discharge, or to give any satisfactory explanation of his arrival in the colony, whereupon Harris took him into custody, and soon after gave him into the custody of another constable. Whilst being conveyed to the watch house the prisoner managed to slip his handcuffs, and make his escape. He was immediately pursued and overtaken, and finally conveyed to the watchhouse, with the assistance of Inspector Garvin, whom in the struggle the prisoner cut over the eye with a blow of the handcuffs. In answer to a question from the bench, the prisoner stated that he arrived from Melbourne in the Hellespont, about three weeks ago, but he could not say where he had been lodging, or give any particulars which would lead to his identity. The bench remanded him until to-morrow (this day) for further evidence.

Alexander Dawson, a seaman belonging to the Sophia M'Kenzie, was charged with disobedience of lawful commands. The offence was clearly proved; the only defence which the prisoner had to make was that he had not received on the occasion referred to his fair share of beef steaks. The Bench sentenced him to four weeks' imprisonment.

Tallog Hanson, a Dutchman, who had been apprehended by Constable Harris, on the Parramatta Road, on the previous night, was brought before the Court on suspicion of being a deserter. He admitted, in broken English, on being apprehended, that he had deserted from some vessel, but he declined to give the name, merely replying that the vessel had sailed. The Bench remanded him until to-morrow, to allow of the necessary inquiries being made as to his identity.

In the second will be shown all the wonders and capabilities of as fine and powerful an Oxy Hydrogen Microscope as has yet been made—and which will be rendered the more interesting, by presenting in a concise and familiar manner, such introductory information as may smooth the threshold of a subject confessedly abstruse—and lead to the study of works of far higher pretensions and deeper research. The Exhibition will conclude—with some of the most magnificent Chromatropes that it is possible to imagine. The whole of this apparatus has been inspected during its manufacture by one of the leading men of the day—whose name is no other than the celebrated Pritchard. The greatest care is being taken to render the Exhibition-room as comfortable in its seating—viewing—and ventilating as possible. THE EYE'S DEFECTIVE VISION RELIEVED.—Mr. S. A. De LISSA has just arrived in Sydney, in connection with the celebrated firm of Messrs. S. and B. Solomons, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly, London, opticians and oculists to the Royal Family, No. 319, Castlereagh-street North, a few doors from King-street. The optical improvements made by this firm enable persons in advanced age, as well as the young, to read with ease, and to discriminate the minutest objects with perfect distinctness. Their spectacle lenses have the most valuable advantage over spectacles now in common use; that instead of the vision becoming strained, heated, or weakened, it is preserved and strengthened, and is soft to the eye. Their glasses are slightly tinted by a valuable process which resists the power of the hottest sun, and keeps the eye cool, and are not to be equalled for lightness and durability. Travelling compasses for the waistcoat pocket, reading glasses, magnifiers, telescopes, double opera and race glasses, &c. No. 319, Castlereagh-street North, a few doors from King-street.

MAW'S ENCAUSTIC TILES
Of the many attempts to produce paving material combining extreme hardness and durability, with elegance of design and facilities for working up, none have borne comparison the revival of one of the most valuable productions of mediæval art, the Encaustic or Inlaid Tile. The coolness of apartments fitted with them, either as pavement or a substitute for wainscot on walls, adapts them in an especial manner for warm climates. Their durability—they being independent of the extremes of damp or dryness, unaffected by constant action of passenger traffic, capable of resisting the attacks of insects, and even the ravages of fire, amounts almost to indestructibility, and renders them in the end the cheapest material that can be employed. In many of the ancient churches in England this pavement, after the lapse of centuries, is all but as fresh as the day it was laid down, and it is now largely introduced into ecclesiastical edifices in the mother country. In Italy and the South of Europe the tile, of an inferior description, is commonly used for pavements in ordinary dwelling houses; glazed tiles and marble being appropriated to buildings of a more costly nature. The Encaustic Tile is fitted to supersede both.
Patterns of various designs and combinations, Greek and Roman, Byzantine and Italian, early English, Norman, Tudor, Elizabethan, &c., may be inspected at the counting-house of the undersigned, who are prepared to furnish estimates and to receive orders for pavements of public edifices or private dwellings.

To Bankers, Merchants, Auctioneers, Capitalists, and Warehousemen. Spacious Business Premises, and Town Residence.
TO BE SOLD, those desirable and extensive business premises, advantageously situated in Lower Pitt-street, adjoining Terry's Buildings, near the Union Bank of Australia, and now occupied by Mr. John Rickards, as a wholesale drapery and fancy warehouse.
The premises consist of a spacious stone-built Dwelling-house, Stores, Cellar, Sheds, and Yards, having a frontage to Pitt-street of 125 feet, by a depth of 180 feet (more or less), comprising half an acre.
The Basement Floor, to which access is had by two entrances from the yard, contains four cellars, well lighted and ventilated, capable of stowing away 1000 tons liquids.
The Ground Floor comprises entrance hall, 10 feet wide, with large parlour, and storeroom on the right, on the left is the present warehouse, with an entrance to the street, and adjoining are three rooms, also with a separate entrance.
On the First Floor is a spacious landing, two staircases, large drawing room, with four lofty and airy bedrooms, closets, &c. &c.; at the rear of the store is a brick-built kitchen, with servants' rooms above, and adjoining are two stone-built dry goods, stores, with stabling, &c., &c. An extensive yard, with sheds and stores, partly enclosed, affords ample accommodation for storing 2000 tons of goods. In the rear of the sheds is a vacant piece of ground, nearly a quarter of an acre, the whole surrounded by a substantial stone-built wall.
The above extensive premises afford a rare opportunity for the capitalist to erect first-class buildings, and when the improvements on the Circular Wharf are completed, Pitt-street will become the leading street of the city, and the above advantageously situated property will become invaluable, either for building first-rate shops, with extensive warehouses, or it would be a splendid site for a fashionable theatre, combined with assembly rooms. With the present buildings it would yield an excellent rental, and could be advantageously divided and let separately at a trifling expense, having already four entrances to Pitt-street.
For further particulars apply on the premises, to Mr. JOHN RICKARDS.

RAYMOND TERRACE, Hunter's River.
Business Premises and Extensive Wharf at Raymond Terrace—also the Lease of the adjoining Wharf—Store and Shop late the property of Mr. Houlding, and well known as Mr. Patey Peek's "Raymond Terrace Store."

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, the 7th of March, at 11 o'clock,
ALL that BLOCK of BUILDING at Raymond Terrace, known as the "Steam Packet Inn," being a large two-storied brick house, comprising entrance hall and ten capacious rooms; it is well and substantially erected, with verandah and balcony in front, directly facing the river, and commanding a pleasing and extensive view. Adjoining the House is a large brick building, capable of storing one hundred tons of merchandise, with other outbuildings, extensive and convenient.
The Wharf is commodious, having sufficient room for two steamers to lay alongside at once.
Together with the above will be sold
The unexpired Lease to the 1st of July, 1855, of the Premises adjoining the above, in the occupation of Mr. William Patey Peek, comprising the Steam Packet Wharf—Large Store—Shop and Dwelling House.
This business is one of the largest and most lucrative in the district, and offers advantages, rarely met with, to any man of moderate means to establish himself, without the possibility of competition.
The opening of the new line of road from Peel's River to Raymond Terrace, by way of the Australian Agricultural Company's stations, will divert the whole of the produce of the New England district to this route, saving a distance of nearly eighty miles, and adding very considerably to the traffic already being carried on at these premises. Raymond Terrace is surrounded by a large agricultural population, rendering it an object of interest to the Australasian General Steam Navigation Company to direct their boats to stop there daily to and from Sydney and Morpeth; and the property now offered for sale, with the adjoining premises on lease, are situated at the only point at Raymond Terrace possessing deep water frontage. The business of the Stores and Shop is well established, having been carried on for some years upon good principles, and is now in extensive operation—coupled with the Inn, a lucrative and thriving concern is now offered for competition, which cannot fail to amply repay the purchaser should he be a man of enterprise and energy.
Plans in the course of preparation.

. Valuable Building Ground and Quarries, Woolloomooloo.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, 14th March, at 11 o'clock,
A PLOT OF LAND, situate between Duke and Brougham streets, Woolloomooloo, having a frontage of 80 feet to both streets, by a depth of 110 feet.
This land is situate nearly opposite the East side of the intended new quay of Woolloomooloo Bay; the frontage in Duke-street is suitable either for building stores or any business premises, and the frontage to Brougham-street is adapted for private residences, having the advantage of the high ground, and an eastern aspect.
The land was originally selected on account of the excellent building stone, and its proximity to the bay, by an experienced quarryman, who has worked it profitably for some time past, and relinquishes the same in consequence of having taken a large contract in another locality.
The frontage to Duke-street is ready to commence building upon immediately, and if the stone were removed from the Brougham-street frontage for that purpose, the latter frontage would be prepared, and there would be found a large surplus of materials for sale. The land is surrounded by the properties of Messrs. Harnett, Buckland, Northwood, and other influential and enterprising proprietors.
Plan in course of preparation, and any further particulars can be had of M. W. Lewis, Esq., Surveyor, or at the rooms of the Auctioneers.

GULGO, Lachlan District, with 1000 Head of Cattle.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th March, at 11 o'clock,
1000 head of cattle, well-bred, and in fair condition. The herd consists of bullocks, cows, heifers, and steers, principally by the imported bull Pirate, and his progeny. Together with the station, known as Gulgo, on the Lower Lachlan, held under a lease of 14 years; having a frontage of about 6 miles to the Lachlan River, and a splendid lagoon on the back run, which is of considerable extent. It is admirably adapted for a dairy station, and, from its position, also as a depôt for cattle for the Port Phillip market. It is about 200 miles from Bathurst, and adjoins the Lower Darling District. The boundaries are well-defined.
The improvements consist of a capital hut; also, a large dwelling-house in the course of erection; a stockyard, and a quantity of split stuff for the erection of another.
. This a capital station, with a choice lot of cattle, well worthy the attention of any party desirous of turning his money by driving the available stock at once to the southern markets.
The stock is disposed of only to close a partnership concern.

Village of Petersham.—1 Acre, 2 Roods, 18 Perches of Land.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th March, at 11 o'clock,
A block of land, situate in the village of Petersham, containing in the whole 1 acre, 2 roods, 18 perches, bounded by the high Canterbury Road and by Barker street, sub-divided into building allotments 33 feet by 90, as per plan on the deeds.
This is a capital block of land, only a short distance from the railway terminus, and in the vicinity of the Parramatta and Canterbury Roads.
Parties who can look forward a few months to the great and important changes which must take place in all the spots on which a railway terminus stands, may with confidence lay out a few pounds as a mere investment to be then realized into a handsome profit.
A speculation such as the purchase of this block must turn out a most lucrative affair.
Plan on view at the rooms.

50 Acres of Land, Rawdon Island Creek, Port Macquarie

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, the 21st March, at 11 o'clock,
A CAPITAL 50-ACRE FARM, situate only seven miles from Port Macquarie, at Rawdon Island Creek, described as follows:—50 acres in the county of Macquarie, at Rawdon Island Creek, bounded on the east by a line north 46 chains, commencing at the confluence of a small creek; on the north by a line west 12 chains; on the west by a line south 34 chains to Rawdon Island Creek; and on the south by that creek.
It will be seen by this description, that the land is well watered, and finely situated for any farming man to avail himself of the market, at Port Macquarie, or for sending his produce to Sydney. A large quantity of grain and dairy produce is remitted from Port Macquarie, but the facilities of steam communication to be shortly applied to that district, will render farming lands of great value, especially when water carriage to the shipping port is combined with other advantages.

The value of these allotments will advance daily, the extensive works of the Railway Station abutting upon them; and for a city residence they are unrivalled—the fresh sea breeze blowing freely over them, and being naturally drained, clean, and healthy.

The Wharf is situate at Miller's Point, between the properties of Messrs. Ebsworth and Co., and the late William Davis.

There are two gardens near the house, with yard; also a cleared paddock enclosed, containing nearly three acres of land. There is also an old orchard, also a capital water hole, and a well of water.
This property is situated only five and half miles from Sydney, and the omnibus passes to and fro daily; it is pleasantly situated for salubrity, and in a respectable neighbourhood.
Lot 5.—TEN ACRES of LAND, on the COOK'S RIVER, formerly Wilson's, now known as the Bank Land.
This land is fenced in on three sides, but otherwise unimproved. It is well adapted for a villa residence, and at a convenient distance from Sydney.
Lot 6.—LAND and COTTAGES, WOLLONGONG.
The land contains nearly a quarter of an acre, having a frontage of 66 feet to Smith-street, by a depth of 145 feet. Upon which is erected a neat brick-built verandah cottage, having three French windows in front, with elevated verandah. The two front rooms form one large room by folding doors, and there is a passage between the two back rooms.
The outbuildings comprise a brick-built kitchen and servants' rooms. Also a shed, somewhat dilapidated. The front is enclosed with palisading fence, and the sides with posts and rails.
These premises are at present occupied by the chief constable.
The land is well situated, being close to the shipping place, and only two minutes' walk of the Police Office. Smith-street leads into Harbour-street.
Lot 7.—A BLOCK OF LAND, having a frontage TO CROWN-STREET, WOLLONGONG, of 50 feet 6 inches, by a depth of 119 feet, on which are erected two brick-built cottages, containing three rooms each, somewhat dilapidated. There is a side entrance from Corronal-street. Lots 1 and 2 in plan.

Only two of the shops are occupied at present.
Lot 9.—A CORNER ALLOTMENT AT WOLLONGONG, immediately facing Elliott's Hotel, having a frontage of 80 feet 9 inches to Crown-street, and a frontage of 57 feet 3 inches to Corrimal-street also a frontage to the lane dividing it from the preceding lot; the street fronts are fenced in.
Lot 10.—TWO ROODS AND TWO PERCHES OF LAND, situated in HARBOUR-STREET, WOLLONGONG. It has a frontage to Harbour-street of 134 feet, by an average depth of 168 feet 3 inches, more or less.

In the rear of the above is a weatherboard four-stall stable, with loft above. Also a detached kitchen; also a store known as the "Elizabeth Cohen Store," built of weatherboards, and brick-nogged. The ground floor has two offices parted off; the upper floor in the roof is entered from an external landing and steps.
This land is fenced in, and the premises are now occupied by Dr. Kinnear.
Harbour-street is the only street leading from the Government Wharf into the township, and a better site than the above for business purposes could not be selected.
. The above properties are in choice positions, and as most of them are improvable, they are worthy the attention of capitalists.
Plans on view at the rooms.
Terms at sale.

7300 fine wooled Sheep, with the Station of Hernani, District of New England, for positive and unreserved Sale, in consequence of the proprietor, C. W. Hughes, Esq., being about to leave the colony for India.

MORT and CO. have been instructed to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on WEDNESDAY, 8th March, at 11 o'clock, the well-known New England run Hernani, with 6000 first-rate fine woolled sheep, carrying heavy fleeces. The sheep consist of 2750 ewes, one to five years old
740 ditto, aged
1060 wethers, rising four and five years old
1000 ditto two and three years
250 rams
1500 lambs
7300 more or less
About 800 of the old ewes are of the original stock, which was very superior, and the remainder are much improved; indeed it would be difficult to purchase better woolled sheep in the colony; they are warranted never to have been diseased. ☞ The wool has for years past obtained the very highest price of the season.
The run has always been considered a first-rate one, is well grassed, sound, beautifully watered, and an open country. It will safely carry in all seasons 16,000 sheep, and is really equal to more.
The improvements are very good, comprising a five-roomed COTTAGE, with verandah, shingled, floored, and plastered; cedar fittings, &c.; a kitchen and verandah, containing four rooms floored and shingled, with covered passage to the house. Woolshed, floored and shingled, containing powerful wool press, skillions, &c. Stable with three stalls, loose box, saddle room, loft, &c. Garden, paled and well-stocked with fruit trees. Horse paddock, very good. Two good cultivation paddocks about 22 acres each. Store, men's huts, hurdles, fowl house, &c., &c. At one of the out stations there are two paddocks, two acres each, enclosed by a five-feet paling fence, in a sheltered situation; these are used by the present proprietor in lieu of hurdling the sheep, moreover saving the expense of a watchman. The run, it may be remarked, is very free from the maraudings of the native dogs, one only having been seen for many months. Three horses, one a black entire, a splendid animal, and a sure foal getter; two teams of bullocks, drays, tackling, spare tackling, a few store bullocks, four milkers and increase; stores, tools, crops of wheat, hay, and potatoes, to be taken at a valuation.
This run is excellently placed in a populous locality, with good neighbours, where labour can be depended upon; it is situated 5 miles from Armidale, and 71 miles from Grafton, and connected therewith by a good road, on which drays travel with a loading of two tons to two tons and a quarter, a great advantage in these times—saving both time and expense. It is a compact desirable property, and with the small number of sheep, compared with its capabilities, presents a favourable opportunity to small capitalists to invest their funds in a most remunerative venture. The proprietor having lived with his family at the station, and giving its conduct his constant supervision, it is needless to observe that all is in good order. The purchaser, in finding his means laid out to profitable advantage, would discover that he had also secured an agreeable and healthy residence for himself. The climate of New England is proverbial for its salubrity, and the property is now disposed of solely on account of the proprietor being obliged to leave the colony for India.
Terms (which will be liberal) at sale.

No. 1, Australian College Buildings, Jamison-street, Sydney. Capital Stone-built House, containing sixteen apartments.

MORT and Co. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, March 10, at 11 o'clock,
That capital stone-built house, situated in Jamison-street, well known as Mrs. Gaunson's private boarding establishment, being No. 1 of the Australian College Buildings.
The accommodations comprise—
On the basement floor, access to which by an archway from Jamison-street, beneath the first floor, a kitchen, two servants' rooms, and coal hole.
On the ground floor—Large entrance hall, flagged; large parlour, with three wall presses; a library, with two wall presses; and a drawing-room.
A stone flight of steps communicates with the next floor, protected by iron balustrades. On this floor there are two large and three small bedrooms, with stone landing.
In the attic there are five rooms.
The house is built entirely of cut stone, in the most substantial manner. It was erected by the Scotch mechanics who immigrated by the Stirling Castle in 1832, and it is a well known fact that their work was equal, if not superior, to any ever done in the colony. Frontage to Jamison-street of 26 feet; depth of house, 46 feet 6 inches, and depth of court yard, about 32 feet.
A reserve of twenty-five feet will be made in the ground in the rear of the yard, next to the wall dividing it from Barrack-square; there will be ample space still left for the erection of the necessary out-offices for the use of the establishment. If the purchaser of the house should wish also to purchase the reserve, which has a distinct frontage to a lane of 20 feet, communicating with George-street and York-street, and will therefore be valuable for the erection of a store, he will have the option of taking it at a valuation without competition.
Immediate possession can be given.
Title—A grant from the Crown.
N.B.—As the whole of the Allotment which this property comprises was a purchase from the late Sir John Jamison, it is in no way subject to a mortgage which the Government hold upon that portion of the Australian College Buildings, which was erected on the allotment of the Scot's Church.
Terms at sale.
Any person wishing to examine the premises previous to the sale, will find the key of the front door at the Rev. Doctor Lang's.

The material of this house it stone and brick, well and substantially built, and needs no repairs, it having within the last few months had everything done for it to render it both safe from damp and secure from fire.
The ground on which the hotel and garden stands has a frontage of 104 feet to Flinders-lane.
52 of which is occupied in front of the hotel, and having a depth of 156 feet.
The other half-frontage is apportioned to the garden, running in depth 194 feet.
The whole having a benefit of an open right of way into Great Collins-street on both sides, and one on either side of the stables, thus giving to each portion of the property a considerable advantage which no other property in Melbourne holds.
The Hotel contains a large public breakfast and dining room, five sitting rooms, twenty-five bedrooms, chiefly having accommodation for at least two beds, extensive cellarage and store rooms, kitchen, pantry, and servants' apartments.
An excellent Billiard Room.
The Stables are built on the adjoining ground, and have accommodation for 36 horses, being fitted up with large and safe stalls; a large loft is overhead; a carriage house, harness room, and grooms' apartments attached, the whole forming the most complete establishment in Melbourne or the colonies.
The fittings up in each department are replete in every respect for the comforts of its visitors, and to the many who daily visit this favoured "restaurant," the Auctioneer can with confidence refer to as to whether his statement is not strictly correct.
The fact of so many minor establishments in town having by means of the nature of the business realised to the holders a princely fortune, must be at once conclusive, that to a party of taste and discerning habits, the occupancy of this hotel is sufficient, not only to do what they have done, but if possible to quadruple their gains—it therefore behoves the monied capitalist as an investment, trustee as the guardian of others, speculator for increased profits,—or the more desirable, the industrious man who cares for his family, to become interested in the purchase of the present, thereby securing to himself that which is in itself to him, "a mine of wealth," and to his successors in trade or business, a benefit which no other source can produce.
The daily increasing traffic by transit, to and from Brighton, St. Kilda, Dandenong, and Sandridge, by those whose patronage alone, many of the above emoluments are desirable from, are many standing reasons to induce a purchase, as it is a well known and indisputable fact that the arrival of parties alone from the shipping in Hobson's Bay, are daily in want of accommodation, which no other hotel possesses.
The situation is without parralel, the site for the new house of the Governor being immediately in front, whilst the lovely promenade to the Victorian Cremorne Gardens is daily thronged with the elite and fashion of the metropolis.
The new line of rail from Melbourne to Sandridge, which has already progressed so rapidly to completion, is in the immediate vicinity of this property, and the trade alone derivable from such a source is enough to enhance the desire of being proprietor of the Prince of Wales.

SUPREME COURT.—The Chief Justice sat yesterday, but the only business disposed of was a few common motions in Equity, and other matters involving no details of public interest.

COURT OF REQUESTS.—This Court will resume its sittings in the Ordinary Jurisdictions this day, at ten o'clock, commencing with the case No. 60 on the list.

THE QUEEN v. HAGGER.—We understand that another prosecution has been instituted in this case, and will be heard this day, at the Central Police Office, at two o'clock.

THE AUSTRALIAN SUBSCRIPTION LIBRARY.—At a numerous meeting of the Committee, held yesterday, it was announced that shares to the amount of upwards of £1200 had been subscribed, leaving the Institution only about £300 in debt.

ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday forenoon, a cab-proprietor, named Daly, residing in Goulburn-street, was assisting his servant to harness the horses to a carriage; they had nearly completed the arrangements of the trappings when one of the animals was slightly touched on his hinder quarter by the splinter bar, wherefore he became restive, unmanageable, and finally broke loose from Daly's hold, and both horses darted off at great speed, drawing the carriage after them. At the junction of Sussex-street with Goulburn-street, unfortunately, several children were playing about, three of whom were run over, Sarah, Thomas, and James Willis (the latter quite an infant); Sarah's thigh was broken in two places, Thomas was so severely injured that he lingered until about seven in the evening and then expired, whilst the infant escaped with very trifling injury. From all inquiries, we believe that no blame is attributed to either Daly or his servant.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE.—A rather numerous meeting of the friends of total abstinence took place yesterday evening, in the Theatre of the School of Arts. Lieutenant Sadlier occupied the chair, and explained the object of the meeting in a few remarks, in which he dwelt forcibly on the importance of total abstinence, both as an example of morality and a preventive of crime, pointing out also that he himself had been a teetotaller for twenty-five years. The following gentlemen then addressed the meeting in support of a series of resolutions, explaining at considerable length the principles on which total abstinence was advocated in the mother country and elsewhere—viz., Mr. Crouch, Mr. Jarman, the Rev. Mr. Mackay, the Venerable Archdeacon M'Encroe, Mr. Gainford, and Mr. Dewey. The Rev. Mr. Voller was appointed to second the first resolution, but as he could not agree with the terms, he subsequently declined, the meeting refusing to assent to the substitution of the word "abuse" for the word "use" of alcoholic liquors, as stated in the resolution. The meeting closed as it began, with prayer and praise to God.

WINDSOR.

THE POLICE OFFICE, SATURDAY.—There was a large amount of business transacted to-day before the sitting magistrates, J. L. Scarvall, Esq., James Ascough, Esq., and S. Tuckerman, Esq., J. P.s. The cases heard were principally under the Vagrant Act, which occupied an unusual length of time. The only matter worthy of record was a charge of pound rescue, brought against one Michael Morton, by George Stanford. Mr. Coley appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Minter for the defence. The defendant was committed for trial.

SOUTH CREEK BRIDGE, WINDSOR.—We take the liberty of drawing the attention of the road trust to the state of the boarding across this edifice. The planks have sprung in several places from the want of some soil or pressure upon them; and we would suggest as a light substance which might be laid upon the flooring, the used-up tan bark, which our tanneries are so glad to get rid of, and which if placed upon the bridge would not add materially to the weight of it, while it would prevent the constant friction and wearing of cart wheels upon the surface.

IMPROVEMENTS.—We are happy to be able to observe and communicate that several capitalists about our town are on the eve of building. We need scarcely remark that never were dwellings more required or better filled than they now are in our town. Parties seem to be squeezing at last out of Sydney, and finding their way amongst us where they will get plenty of every kind of employment, and find living fifty per cent. cheaper. Rents have risen, though not at one-fourth of the Sydney rates, still the increased expense of building will be amply repaid by the augmented return. Mr. Laban White intends running up three cottages in George-street, for which the materials are already on the ground. And other parties only await his commencement to imitate his example.

LAND SALES.—Mr. John Yeomans sold 25 acres of arable land at Wilberforce last week for £1100, being at the rate of £44 per acre. A small allotment in town, with a miserable skillion upon it, sold on Saturday last, for £250.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—Observing that the Government have determined to allow the officials in their employ the benefit of a half-holiday on Saturday, allow me, through the medium of your widely circulated columns, to bring before the merchants of Sydney the great advantage which would accrue both to themselves and to the young men in their employ by following a similar liberal course; and, in the first place, permit me to ask, how is it that the Sabbath—at home so strictly observed—is here so generally used merely as a day of pleasure? It it not that the young man, cooped up throughout the week, and debarred from enjoying the long evenings, which are so delightful at home, deludes himself into the idea that it is necessary for his health that he should spend the Sunday in out-door exercise! But how generally does he find out, that the law of God cannot be broken with impunity—that the brandy-bottle is but a poor substitute for the Bible, and that on the Monday morning he rises without feeling the freshness for which the Sabbath was so wisely ordained. With a half-holiday on Saturday, of course, he would have neither excuse nor, I think, the inclination for Sabbath breaking. But perhaps the merchant, looking rather to the £ s. d. side of the question, will say, "I shall be a heavy loser." It seems to me that he will in the end be a gainer; for it is notorious that a willing horse will pull the best, and I think that he can hardly have forgotten that in his own younger days, if treated liberally he could work much harder; at all events it is an experiment worth trying, and it rests with a few of our merchants to set the example. Meanwhile, hoping that the clerks themselves will not be backward in aiding the movement.

I remain, yours respectfully,

A CLERK.

THE LATE FIRE IN PITT STREET.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—Seeing in this morning's publication an account of the late fire, and wishing to give credit where credit is due, I take the liberty of addressing you, hoping you will give this letter a place in your widely circulated journal.

Allow me to state, before the alarm was given by the watchman Mr. Aitkin, jun., and Mr. Henderson, two residents in the neighbourhood, were on their road to the engine station. When they arrived there, Mr. Bown was not to be found; they however managed to collect three or four of the fire brigade—not more, and with the assistance of two of the foot police, commenced the arduous task of drawing the engine up to the fire (horses not being obtainable), in which, I am happy to say, they were successful. In the meantime, Mr. Roxburgh knocked Mr. Fowler up, and they were quickly joined by many of the neighbours, who immediately commenced to break open the store door. After a while they succeeded in doing so, using a pair of pulleys, such as draymen have for loading their drays with, as a battering ram. And then the engine was brought in play, being worked wholly by the residents of the vicinity, and two men-of-war sailors; there were only nine men to work the engine, and they continued to do so, without cessation, for the space of an hour and a quarter, when the fire was nearly extinguished. The mounted patrol and some of the constables then came up, and commenced to work, giving us the first rest we had since the commencement of the fire. In fact, we were so tired towards the latter end, that we could not throw the water with sufficient force, and the men attending the hose pressed it every now and then, which caused a better flow of water, the aperture by which the water was forced being much smaller by the process.

Now, I want to ask you, were nine men sufficient to work the engine? I was assured by one of the brigade that twenty men was the complement to work it.

Not wishing to intrude any more upon your valuable space,

I remain yours, &c.,

GEORGE LOUIS A. DAVIS.

THE FISHERY COMPANY, AND THE SUPPLY OF LIVE STOCK.

To the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Sydney Fishery Company.

SIR,—I was much disappointed at the small number who attended the Fishery meeting, and still more at the kind of men they were; only such as would come for the love of fishing as a sport, or because it was for the public good; the pure money makers, the men who would wish to secure all the shares of a promising railway, did not think it worth the trouble, and until they do the fishery will be regular up-hill work. They will supply fish enough, once you show that it will pay a good dividend, but you can prove that only by the actual payment, and every family man, rich and poor, should take shares, so as to secure your success, to which I believe a fair trial is all that is necessary; if it fails, the loss will be very small indeed, while if it succeeds, fish, instead of being a luxury, will be the cheapest of all food. That it is the interest, almost the duty, of the family men to make an effort can be easily proved.

Shortly after the gold discovery, several letters appeared, upon our means of supplying a large population, and it was shown that our cattle and sheep would barely suffice for 300,000 people; there are more than that already (in New South Wales and Victoria) and the consumption is so enormous that we are threatened with a positive scarcity of animal food. About six months ago I went to Melbourne purposely to learn the state of the market, and found 1st, that the stockholders had ceased breeding sheep in 1852, for fear of having no labour; 2nd, that very few had renewed it since on account of scab; 3rd, that when they did, the increase from the size of the flocks, and the scarcity of labour, was almost nothing. And consequently, that instead of the annual crop of ripe sheep, they were consuming their standing stock of all ages and sexes, and that at such a rate that in three years the whole sheep in Victoria will disappear. I got numbers of settlers to state seriatim the decrease on each station of their several districts, and in one case it was 300,000; in all, considerably above 1,200,000. This will appear monstrous, but is easily accounted for. The stockholders were panic-struck at the spread of scab, and were sure of a good price at the mines, so that instead of sending up sheep of say 56 lbs., mostly solid meat, they, to escape the disease, rushed off everything, often under two years old, and 40 lbs. weight. Only a small portion of these were meat and of such poor substance, that a small party of diggers made nothing of one a day; they are, in fact, wasting stock, not consuming mutton. As a proof that this is not exaggerated there is the fact of a deficiency in the Victoria clip of at least 8000 bales, some say 12,000; and further that the Victoria cattle dealers now monopolise the southern districts, the Murray, Murrumbidgee, and Lachlan, from which Sydney has hitherto got her principal supply of cattle, and outbid the Sydney butchers on the Upper Lachlan, barely 200 miles from the city. It may be said, if we have lost our principal districts, where does our present supply come from? Ask any butcher, and he will tell you from the north country, which in usual seasons supplied Maitland, but has had two such seasons as have scarcely ever been seen before, and may not occur again for twenty years; so rare indeed are they that last season every one boiled down, some every head that would produce 12s. 6d.; 73,000 head were destroyed for tallow, and this year you will scarcely see a bullock four years old. Everything is now fat; there is food for your horse a hundred yards from every public-house; I myself saw lately thousands of cattle camping at shallow waterholes with large trees growing in the middle of them, showing that they had been years without water, and the unbounded pasture round totally unavailable. Now, mark the effect of the first average season, which we may expect next to be. We will be confined to the northern districts, and if their supply now, when everything is fat, is such as to realise from £5 to £7 per head, what will it be when the casual waterholes are dried up, and the cattle limited to the main waters, with pasture infinitely inferior to what it is at present. In former times the answer would have been that, if confined to a small part of our former supply, the price must rise till the consumption is limited to it, but not so now. The Victorians are not only consuming their own breeding stock, and rapidly draining the South of its ripe cattle, but have nearly drained the North of its spare store cattle. Numbers of men who came up thinking to get cattle in thousands from the North, like buckets of water from the ocean, have returned unsuccessful, and with difficulty I got one half of what I wanted (on the strength of these calculations) at three times the price of twelve months ago. They are not there, and as the Victorians must have butcher-meat, they will draw from our necessities and raise the price until it forces the diggers to be economical in their consumption. To stand their work and exposure they must have butcher-meat in large quantities—it is a necessity; in California they paid as high as two dollars a pound, and if ours stop at 2s. per pound we will be very fortunate. We have hitherto had butcher-meat as our staple food, and fish as a luxury, now we must adopt means to procure fish enough to be our staple and take butcher-meat as a luxury.

The arrangements for commencing operations proposed by Mr. Hill are most economical and judicious, but as I have actually established a fishery, a relation of my experience may save much trouble and expense, and at least act as a warning against complexity in your operations. On landing in Port Phillip twelve years ago, I bought sheep and cattle like my neighbours, but finding the bush rather slow and having a good manager as partner, I looked out for some more active occupation and commenced a fishery on the following grounds. I had been struck by the fact of the Australian balances having no production to exchange with China and the east for their tea, sugar, coffee, &c. I was aware that the East India Company had for many years taken out large quantities of Newfoundland cod, which sold at 6d. a lb., and gave up the trade only because the fish decayed on the long voyage; and I learned that there were great quantities of fish on these coasts. I then concluded that if I could cure the fish at a reasonable rate, an extensive trade might be established, most advantageous to the colony, and profitable to myself. All this I represented in a memorial to the Government, got a squatting license for a piece of land at the mouth of the Yarra, where I established a fishing station, and Highland fishermen accustomed to curing being in plenty, I at once commenced operations. A boisterous season seriously interrupted the deep sea fishing, and the married men suggested that if allowed to fish near home till the weather got better, they would sell the produce in Melbourne, and give me a portion for the use of the boats and nets. This saved expense; so they fished at home, while I, with a pinched crew, pursued my examination of the coasts. The men complained that the private boats refused to sell to any hawker who bought from the Company's boats, and proposed that I should form a depôt in Melbourne, and put one of their countrymen into it, so as to make them independent of the hawkers. This I did, and in a short time he suggested that he could pay his expenses by selling stores to others besides our own men, so I supplied him with stores. Everything went on swimmingly for some months, but on returning from a long expedition I found every thing at sixes and sevens. The store was empty, and nothing to show but long accounts with Duncan M'This and Dugald M'That; and as people would not come to him for fish when others brought them to their doors, the depôt was summarily concluded. War between the boats was again furious—nets were burned, boats and oars set adrift, and only one hawker stuck by them. They had been successful too, and got proportionably drunk; and to crown all, they told me that as they could get £30 per annum and rations certain, they would leave unless I guaranteed the same from their share of the fishing.

To keep them together I had no choice but to comply, and as they had starved all their lives, £30 a year and rations was a fortune to them, and, with one exception, they were perfectly useless. The difficulties of '43 came on when every stockholder had work enough to keep afloat without developing the resources of the colony, so I gave the fishing up, but not before forming the conviction in which constant inquiry since has confirmed me, that the supply of fish is unlimited, that they can be cured and shipped almost as cheaply as Newfoundland cod (12s.) per cwt. after paying very high wages, and that it only requires capital and labour to make their fishery one of the great interests of the Australian colonies. We have few banks but plenty of lakes and bays of great extent absolutely swarming with fish, and admirably adapted for fishing stations, and as we have a market for any quantity in the east, there is no reason why we should not rival Newfoundland, besides amply supplying ourselves. The cry is that we have no labour, but skilled fish curers I found in every occupation, and labouring hands will join in plenty. The curing season will be January, February, and March, when the weather is dry and the mullet on the coast in "inconceivable myriads"—like the herring at home. If fishing stations were then formed and conveyance provided, men of all trades would engage to go there as they formerly did to sheep-shearing for a holiday and good wages, and with a fisherman in each boat, would make effective crews while the skilled men split and salted ashore. Such quantities of schnappers, &c., might be salted for exportation, and mullet smoke-dried for Sydney, that these three months would, I am satisfied, yield such a dividend that the annual fishing would become as much a part of our colonial system as sheep-shearing and harvest.

In conclusion, allow me to give you a few hints.

1. Instead of any namby-pamby plans of benefiting the public by selling at a low price, devote your whole attention to paying a good dividend; do that, and fish will soon be cheap enough.

2. Make curing for exportation a primary object! for once curing stations are shown to pay, such a system will be formed that an ample supply to Sydney will follow as a matter of course.

3. Confine your operations to the waterside, and have nothing whatever to do with shops or hawkers. People will not come to shops for what is brought to their doors! besides, retail shops managed by deputy never pay—and if they did, you will have quite enough on your hands without attending to them. The hawkers have a monopoly; give a trifle to the fishermen, and sell at exorbitant prices to the public. But hiring hawkers to sell at low prices is not the way to remedy the evil. The fish have a price proportioned to the supply, and to the price of butcher meat; and either your men would sell at market price and pocket the difference, or if they did not, you make a present to the few who are lucky enough to get the fish. Increase the supply and sell to the hawkers, in lots, by auction, as at Billingsgate; you will then sell at the highest price, and the public purchase at the lowest.

With every wish for your success,

I remain, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

The Page, February 21st, 1854. GIDEON S. LANG.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—Could you use your influence to urge on the Merchants and Gentlemen of Sydney to convene a public meeting to express their disapprobation on the shameful delay of postal communication to this quarter.

The English Government appears to be perfectly indifferent on the subject. Their only object in sending by a sailing ship is a mere piece of jobbing, binding the contractors down to a certain time that they are pretty well assured they cannot perform it in, and by a return of the forfeit for non-performance, the money returns to their coffers.

What the steam ships can do they are well aware of, and, by this time, what the others have not done. I do think now speedy communication is so essential in a commercial point of view, and so many at all times anxiously looking out for a line from their friends and relations at home, that the colonists took their own interests in hand and agitate the question. The English Government, it is proverbial, requires a little pressure from without at all times.

I am, Sir, yours most respectfully,

Sydney, February 28, 1854. J. H.

CONFESSION OF A CHINESE REBEL.

To the Editor of the North China Herald.

DEAR SIR,—I have just fallen in with a Canton man, who was for some time a follower of Taeping-wang, and who left Nan-king in August last. His account may be considered trustworthy, because it corresponds in its main points with what we know of the state of things there; and it is important, inasmuch as its reveals certain facts with which we were not before acquainted. I do not conceive that the man had any motive for deceiving me, and his statements were delivered with an air of candour which carried with them a conviction of his sincerity. True or not, you have them as nearly as possible as he delivered them, and you may take them for what they are worth.

When questioned as to the religion of the insurgents, he answered with an air of reverence that they worshipped God (Shang-te). When asked when they did it? he replied every day, and previous to every meal. He was then requested to repeat something of what they said; when he chanted the doxology, as it is found in the Book of Religious Precepts of Tae-ping-wang, in such a tone and manner as showed that he was familiar with it. As he had referred to their daily meals, he was asked whether they had sufficient to eat? Abundance, he replied. And whether they had enough to wear? To which he answered they had plenty of clothing. He was then asked, how long he had been with them? he said, that he had followed them from Canton, and that his hair had grown three or four inches long. How came it, then, he was asked, as he had enough to eat and to wear, with good instruction, and a prospect of going to Heaven when he died, that he came to leave them. Oh, he replied, a man could not smoke common tobacco, and by no means opium; a man could not drink, nor gamble, nor indulge his lust, nor quarrel, nor steal; and if one did but rail at another he got a bambooing. It was suggested that by urging these as the reasons for leaving, he exposed himself to the suspicion that he was fond of all these bad practices, and thereby laid himself open to just ridicule and reproach. On hearing this, he appeared rather ashamed, and seemed willing, if he could, to retract his expressions. He was then asked, whether he got any pay? to which he replied, not a cash; no pay being dealt out to the troops from one month's end to the other. He was also asked whether he was allowed to enjoy the society of his wife? to which he replied in the negative, adding that the women in Nang-king were all kept in a particular quarter of the city, where there were whole streets of them, but that no men were allowed to approach, under pain of death.

On a subsequent occasion, he was asked whether such a person as Tae-ping-wang actually existed, or whether he was dead, and his image carried about, as some had reported. He said that he had no doubt that Tae-ping-wang was an actual living man: that he frequently went about in a chair, but so shrouded in deep folds of silks, that the commonest people could not get a glace at him. The highest officers, however, saw him every night, when they went to consult about affairs of state, and to receive his orders. He was asked whether he had ever heard that Tae-ping-wang had been up to heaven? To which he replied, Certainly—it was commonly reported, and fully believed among his followers. Recurring to the subject of the soldiers receiving no pay, he was asked whether any of them possessed any property of their own? To which he replied, None whatever; and if more than five dollars are found in the possession of any man, he is immediately bambooed, for not having given it up previously. All moneys, immediately they were acquired, were instantly to be handed over to the general treasury, and any person secretly hoarding wealth is suspected of treasonable practices. Was there much, then, in the general treasury? Oh abundance; heaps upon heaps of untold silver, which was all reserved for the carrying out of the great cause. As no person was allowed to have any private resources, how did they manage, it was asked, when they wanted to buy anything nice for food? There was no need for that, he said, as the centurion of every company bought what was necessary for the mess, and when it was put on the tables they shared every one alike, the dish of the highest officer being in no way different from that of the meanest soldier. He was then asked, why the men were separated from the women, and when such separation took place? He said, that during all their progress from Kwang-se, the women fought by the side of the men, and conducted themselves as bravely; but when they arrived at Nan-king, they were separated, because there was no more need for them to engage in warfare. They were therefore kept apart, had their various duties to perform, and were engaged for a great part of the time in learning! Every band of twenty-five women, having an instructress over them. As for the men they were told, that it was their business to fight and to work for the present; and when the empire was gained, they might enjoy their wives. But how, it was asked, is each one to find his own, when the war is over, among such a multitude. He replied, every man and woman is regularly registered, and there will not be the slightest difficulty in restoring to every man his rightful partner. He was asked whether there were any secret society men among Tae-pang-wang's follower's, specifying the Teen-te-hwuy, San-ho-hwuy, Seaou-taou-hwuy, and others? When he immediately and distinctly replied, that there were none, for Tae-ping-wang put them to death. How did he know that Tae-ping-wang acted thus by the secret society men? He replied that in the month of May of the present year, he killed three hundred of them. (This accounts for the omission of all reverence to the Teen-te-hwuy in the revised edition of Tae-ping-wang's books, which were brought down by Dr. Taylor, from Chin-keang. It is possible that he found them an unmanageable set, as their banding together was altogether independent of the religious views entertained by Tae-ping-wang, and so when he felt himself strong enough, he cast them off.) Speaking of learning, he was asked, what books they learned; to which he replied, none other than the books published by Tae-ping-wang; all other books were burnt. He was then asked, whether the books of Confucius were burnt likewise! being no scholar he said he could not give a definite answer. He was then asked whether he had ever been to school, and what books he had then learned. He said, he had only been to school for about a year, when a boy, and the schoolmaster flogged him so grievously that he ran away. During that year what books did he learn? he said, the Ta-heoh and the Chung-yung. Had he ever seen these books in Nanking? Yes, he said he had seen them, but they were altered. Were books on history permitted? He did not know. What about the books of Budha? oh, everything belonging to Budha and Tâou were indiscriminately destroyed: the temples and images were smashed all to pieces, and he supposed that the books of these religionists shared the same fate. As for the priests they dared not show their faces, and together with gamblers, opium-smokers, and whoremongers were scattered to the four winds. There was no use talking about such, as they were utterly exterminated. He was then asked whether they kept the sabbath? to which he replied, that it was regularly observed; that no work was done on that day, except what was necessary. That they all assembled for public worship in large halls when they knelt down, to prayer, and that the chiefs exhorted them. On being asked, who the exhorters were? he mentioned, among others, Lae, at Nan-king. He knew nothing about baptism or the Lord's Supper. He was asked, if he had heard much of Jesus? he replied that he had heard his name frequently, but he was not competent to detail what he heard. He was then asked, what was now his settled opinion—he had been for several months with Tae-ping-wang, and for several months with the Imperialists; which now, honestly speaking, did he prefer. He looked round, and asked if no one was near, and whether we would accuse him? We replied, there was no danger. Upon which he exclaimed, with emphasis, I am for Tae-ping-wang. Why, then, it was again asked, did he leave him? Because, said he, I had a brother among the Imperialists, and I wanted to see him: in order to accomplish this, I went out secretly; my brother then had my head shaved, and reported that I was a distressed subject of the Emperor, who had been deceived into following the insurgents. I was then taken into the pay of the Imperialists, and was afraid to go back, lest I should lose my head.

What an extraordinary view does the above present of the insurgent army? What a moral revolution! To induce 100,000 Chinamen, for months and years together, to give up tobacco, opium, lust and covetousness; to deny themselves in lawful gratifications, and, what is dearer to a Chinaman's heart than life itself, to consent to live without dollars, and all share and share alike, braving death in its worst form, and persevering therein without flinching. There may be defective teaching among them, there may be errors of a greater or less magnitude—but if what is above detailed be true—or the half of it—it is confessedly a moral revolution—it is the wonder of the age.

Yours truly,

W. H. MEDHURST.

THE PORT OF ACAPULCO.

(From a Correspondent of the San Francisco Herald.)

IN security for shipping the harbour is not in many instances surpassed. It's dimensions are not equal to those of many others, but in point of accessibility, depth, and freedom from currents and bars, it is inferior to none. It is the first harbour, worthy of the name, south of San Blas, from which place it is distant, by the coast line, 300 miles, and I cannot well conceive a haven for shipping more happily placed, nor more picturesque in figure.

Imagine to yourself a coast, whose water line is an iron bound cliff, from which rises tier upon tier a succession of mountain chains, that are finally lost among the clouds. At their base clothed in chapparral and stunted shrubs; upon the ridges appear oaks and pines, whose tall forms may be distinguished from the decks of vessels sailing beneath. Enclosed among these hills are numerous longitudinal valleys, which possess a soil of rich black loam, and which, although now but sparsely peopled and little cultivated, can, without doubt, be rendered very productive of sugar, rice, cotton, and tobacco, to say nothing of the numerous varieties of tropical fruits. These valleys cannot be discovered from sea; and sailing along the coast, one rocky point after another is passed, with but little appearance of any level land, save what may occasionally occur at the mouth of some small creek. Such is the character of the Mexican coast from the point which the steamer first makes, after crossing the California Gulf, down to the entrance of the harbour of Acapulco. The water is very deep, being blue in colour close in shore, and as there are no shoals and few rocks, a steamer may, if she please, keep within sound of the surf. Storms are of rare occurrence upon the track of a sea, which elsewhere as well deserves the title of the Pacific; and to my mind, for steam navigation, there is no part of the watery highway safer or more pleasant to travel. One thing only could be wanted, and that would be a convenient succession of harbours, in which to put for coal and ships' stores. This is supplied by the character and relative position of Guaymas, Mazatlan, San Blas, and Acapulco, all which are easy of entrance, furnish good water and plenty of live stock and other refreshments. The latter, I fancy, will in a short time, be inferior to neither of the others in the accommodations she will offer to the traveller setting towards California; but it is the excellence of her harbour, which also seems peculiarly adapted to steamers, that has caused her to be selected as their chief depôt on the Mexican coast. A lofty mountain indicates the position of the port, in front of which is an island, whose rocky stratifications are, a short distance off, concealed by the thick shrubbery that covers it. This island is a natural breakwater for the harbour within, and the masses of rock, of which it is formed, appear to be laid with almost the regularity of masonry. Its shores are bold, and ships of the largest burthen can pass in, by channels both on its northern and southern extremities, with no manner of difficulty. To save time, the steamers enter by one passage and go out by the other, just as suits the convenience of their course. Passing the island the inner harbour presents itself, in figure something like the letter Y—the long limb being turned so as to present its lower end to the north. The city and fort are placed at this lower end, which there appears smooth as a mill-pond, although deep enough to float, within a stone's cast of the shore, an enormous steamer like the Golden Gate. South of a point on which the fort stands, and extending inland to the rear of the town, is a small valley, which, cultivated in small patches, is occupied by numerous straw thatched huts, over which hang groves of cocoa and plantain trees. On another occasion I have given a description of the town, and you will therefore understand, that unless some enterprising Yankee enlighten the inhabitants of Acapulco upon the advantage of water lots, the level space I have just mentioned is the only field for future expansion. It is apt to escape notice, from the fact that Fort Point in great measure shuts it out from view; but from the rich and singular forms of tropical vegetation covering the little valley, which is traversed also by several streams, the temporary sojourner in Acapulco can find no evening employment more agreeable than walking among the shady paths that cross it. Very many of the plants bear flowers which emit a perfume, and as the evening stillness hushes other sounds, the monotonous but not unmusical tone of the surf along the shore of the harbour falls distinctly upon the ear, and contributes to lull the senses into a repose in keeping with the scene and its influences.—Fireflies are very numerous, and darting about among the shrubbery like minute lances of night, they produce a very pleasing effect.—Of mosquitos I heard but few, although it is by no means rare that there is encountered an animal called alleran by the natives, which is much more formidable. This is the veritable scorpion, with its sting fixed in its tail, and possessing a temper as irascible as its venom is dangerous. I saw several—indeed, made a more close acquaintance with them than was consistent with comfort, having on two occasions to brush one from the inside of my travelling coat—and examined them closely.—They were four and six inches long respectively, and were very ugly looking "varmints," brown in colour, and something like a minute lobster in shape; one of their several pairs of legs is furnished with forceps, with which, I presume, they seize their prey. The sting seems intended as a weapon of defence, but is even more dangerous to touch than the Irishman's coat-tail at Donnybrook Fair: curved like a Turk's scimitar, it is attached to the end of a long tapering body, consisting of many joints that bend upward, and, as with a rattlesnake's fangs at its root is a small bag, (containing the venom. I do not know whether the creature possesses any activity, but from its habits I should think it does not. It haunts old timber, the rafters of houses, and is apt to introduce itself into the folds of clothing. As it moves about among the rafters, it frequently lets go its hold and tumbles down, when, should it strike any living object, it immediately commences to ply its mischievous weapon. In fact, the slightest touch of its ugly little body is resented by a blow. Curious enough, the creature seems to possess very lively maternal affection, and nothing is more common than to see a female with a half dozen of her hopeful progeny clinging to her back. Centipedes and tarantulas are often to be met with in the same locations as please the taste of the scorpion, and, though less powerful, perhaps, their sting also will produce much distress. The name is a sufficient description of the first, and I am at the pains to caution travellers against all of them, because from Acapulco to Cuernavaca they are each sufficiently numerous to be the occasion of considerable dread. Stopping one night, for example, at a hut in the middle of the famous Canada of Zopilote, which is four days ride from Acapulco, and high up among the mountains, I found, lying upon the dirt floor, a poor devil of a Frenchman, who had been stung by a scorpion two days before. For a good many hours he had been delirious from pain, and was still suffering much. With this, I will conclude my chapter on the reptiles of Acapulco, only adding, that from my own experience, a little care will obviate most of the danger from them.

Having described some of the inconveniences of the port, I now return to its conveniences. Of these, not the least is the excellent water, which issues from springs, or is taken from wells, at the base of hills behind the town. This supply is never-failing, and in the rainy season, which had commenced a fortnight before I reached the city, hundreds of little rills and brooks, pour their waters into the harbour. Every passenger in the steamers has noticed the quantity and variety of fish in the bay, some of which, I was informed, corresponded with species known among the keys of Florida. They take bait with avidity, and could also be caught in seines, but, strange to say, plenty as they are in the water, the market is ill supplied. At the "Canton House," which is kept by a Chinaman, and where I took my meals, we had several varieties, every day on the table, but John said they were dear and difficult to obtain. It may be that the Indians, who are literally amphibious in their habits, have a sort of feeling of relationship towards the natives, and therefore do not choose to drag them rudely into the upper air. John, however, attributes their indulgence to laziness, and, with much indignation, he added, that they were so mean as to refuse him permission to take what they were too indolent to catch themselves. Fowls and eggs are of course plenty, and in their season, fruits indigenous to the country may also be had in considerable abundance. Should Acapulco acquire importance under the operations of Ramsay's Company, the conveniences which it can afford, as well to travellers as to shipping, will, in every respect, doubtless, be improved. My own impression is, that the route over Mexico will attract much of the travel to California, and as a very important point of the transit, I have thought it proper to enlarge upon the character of the town which I have described. Furthermore, it will deserve especial consideration from the fact that it lies in the direct track—in that respect having the advantage even of San Blas—of such steam communication as may hereafter be established between our growing State and the countries of South America. The best country proper which it possesses is almost entirely undeveloped.—Most of the inhabitants of the State—Guerrero—in which it is situated, are almost pure Aztec, who, although they cultivate the ground, are poor, and have necessarily but few wants which will attract merchant ships to the port. The Indians, however, carry on among themselves certain species of rude manufactures, and, on the principal market days, some of their towns exhibit spectacles of considerable activity and bustle. An important commerce has sprung from small beginnings, and such will receive much additional encouragement if, as I have suggested, the resort of California travellers to Acapulco should draw the inhabitants of the interior to its market.

A LUCKY EMIGRANT.—A letter has been received in Canterbury, from a citizen who has recently taken up his abode in Melbourne, in which he gives the following description of a public sale he attended at that place. The writer states that a splendid luncheon was furnished with champagne and many other luxuries, at a great cost, for those who attended the sale; but the most extraordinary part of the correspondence remains to be told. The emigrant alluded to, who left England about three years since became the purchaser of some land at Melbourne, consisting of nine acres. The original purchase amounted to about £400, some portion of the land being sold to him at £30 only per acre. The produce of the nine acres at the sale referred to exceeded the enormous sum of £12,000! The land was sold for building purposes.—Kentish Gazette.

MERCANTILE AND MONEY ARTICLE.

Wednesday Evening.

BY the Parana, which arrived here on Tuesday, we have advices from Shanghae to the 5th of December. From the Woo-sung River and the Yangtze-kang (the main artery of China), the political news is vague and unsatisfactory; but in commercial affairs renewed activity is reported, notwithstanding the position still held by the insurgent forces. A mercantile letter from one of the leading British firms of the port, to a house in Sydney, states that a good business continues to be done in teas; common congous realizing 13 to 14½ taels, and better grades from 15 to 19. The advices, however, state, that the exports to Great Britain during the first eleven months of 1853 showed a decrease on the same period of 1852, of £3,000,000; whilst the exports to America had decreased one-half. Great fluctuations had taken place in the exchanges. A receipt of bullion from Europe to the amount of 1,500,000 dollars had caused a temporary decrease; but at the date of the latest letters they were quoted at 6s. 3d. to 6s. 6d. per dollar, six months' date. Freights continued very high, £6 per ton, with every prospect of an increase. In consequence of the unsettled state of political affairs, and the hasty and uncertain manner in which the tea crops were brought into the market there is every reason to believe that but a comparatively small supply of superior brands will reach the Australian ports for some time to come. The present position of Shanghae, the most important of the Chinese ports yet opened to foreigners, is very critical.

The Valparaiso papers to the middle of December furnish some intelligence as to the state of the markets there. The wheat and flour markets exhibited a decided downward tendency. Transactions in cotton were on a very limited scale; but there was a demand for flour bags. The market for silk goods was very dull. There had been an arrival of Chinese goods in the Isabella Hyne, by way of Australia, but the goods being unsuitable were offered at prime cost. Wines and spirits were very saleable at highly remunerative rates; but brandy of superior quality was fully supplied. Geneva was scarce and in demand. Olive oil much in demand. Sugar and molasses scarce. Cheese and hams very plentiful. Wool was arriving in small quantities, and selling at 9 dollars 50 cents, to 10 dollars per quintal in the grease. Merino wool 15 dollars.

From Port Curtis, by the way of Moreton Bay, specimens of gold have been received at the Surveyor General's department. His Excellency the Governor-General, the Colonial Secretary, and suite, sail for this port to-morrow, (this day, Thursday,) by H.M.S. Calliope.

A special general meeting of the proprietors in the Sydney Gold Escort Company is convened for to-morrow (this day, Thursday). The object of the meeting is to receive a letter from the Colonial Secretary, of the 22nd ultimo; to reconsider the resolutions passed at the last half-yearly meeting, when there were not sufficient proprietors represented to dissolve the Company in accordance with the deed; and for the transaction of such other business as may be brought forward.

The following circular was issued to-day, by the secretary of the Sydney Railway Company:—

Railway Office, Sydney, 1st March, 1854.

Sir,—At the half-yearly meeting of the shareholders held on the 17th January last, the following Resolution was passed:—

That in accordance with the provisions of the 68th clause of the Act of Incorporation the capital of the Company be increased to £250,000, by the issue of 20,000 new shares of £5 each, and that the directors be authorised to adopt such measures as may be necessary to give effect to this resolution, and also to apply to the Government for an extension of the guarantee of the minimum dividend of five per cent. on the additional capital.

The 69th clause of the Act of Incorporation provides—

"That when and from time to time the Directors of the said Company shall determine to issue new shares under the provisions of this Act they shall, by a Circular Letter to be sent by post or otherwise, and addressed to each of the then proprietors of the present shares in the said Company, signify the number of new shares proposed to be issued, and the LOWEST PRICE intended to be taken for the same respectively, and the proprietors of such present shares shall, within a period to be stated in such Circular Letter, but not less than thirty days from the sending thereof, be entitled to the option of taking all or any of such shares so to be newly created, in preference to any other person, and that such of the said proprietors of present shares who within such period of thirty days, may signify, in writing, to the manager or clerks of the said Company, their desire to partake in the distribution of such new shares, shall as between themselves be entitled to have so many of such newly created shares allotted to them respectively as shall be in proportion to the number of present shares in the said undertaking then belong to them respectively."

In accordance with the provisions of this clause, I am desired by the Directors to inform you that they have determined, under the authority contained in the above cited resolution, to issue twenty thousand new shares of five pounds each, and that of these new shares every proprietor of stock in the Company can obtain a number equal to that of his present shares at par, on condition that on every new share so taken he shall pay at the time of taking it a deposit of two pounds ten shillings. The remaining amount of the shares will be payable on calls of ten shillings each to be made at intervals of not less than three months.

The new shares to be issued will be subject to the same provisions in all respects, whether with reference to the payment of calls, or the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls, or otherwise, as if they had been part of the original capital.

The number of new shares to which you will be entitled on the above terms is   that being the number of the original shares registered in your name at the present date. Should you desire to take the whole or any portion of this number of new shares, I am directed to inform you that it will be necessary that you should signify to me your intention in writing, in the form enclosed, on or before the tenth day of April next.

Annexed is an Extract from the letter of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary, conveying the reply of His Excellency the Governor General to the application of the Directors for an extension to the new capital of the Guarantee given on the original of a Dividend of Five per cent., and also for a further Loan under the provisions of the Act of Council, 16 Victoria, No. 39.

By order of the Board,

(Signed) T. L. EBSWORTH, Secretary.

Extract from the Honorable the Colonial Secretary's Letter of the 10th February, 1854—

"It afforded the Council much satisfaction to perceive from the papers laid before them that there is now a prospect of a portion of the line of railway being brought into immediate, and, as they hope, successful operation, provided means be devised for raising the additional funds, which the Directors of the Company declare to be necessary.

"They therefore advise—

"1stly. That subject to the concurrence of the Legislative Council, steps should be taken when the proper period arrives, for raising by debentures secured on the land revenues of the colony, the funds necessary to enable the Government to make a second loan to the Sydney Railway Company of £150,000, on the same terms as the loan of the like sum already contracted to be made and partially advanced, as set forth in the Council's Proceedings on the 9th November, 1852, a copy of which was forwarded in my letter of the 30th of that month to the President of the Company.

"2ndly. That the Government permanent guarantee of interest of five per cent. by way of dividend, which at present attaches to the original shares of the Company—that is to say, to the extent of £100,000—shall be extended, and shall apply in like manner, in all respects to the further sum of £100,000, now proposed to be raised by the creation of 20,000 additional shares.

"The subject will accordingly be brought under the notice of the Legislative Council in the next session: and I am directed to add, that as advised by the Executive Council, His Excellency the Governor-General will recommend these propositions to the favourable consideration of the Legislature."

The half-yearly general meeting of the proprietors of the Ophir Copper Mining Company was held on Monday. The report of the Directors was declared to be highly satisfactory, and was unanimously adopted. On the motion of Mr. Alger, seconded by Sir Charles Nicholson, Mr. Louis Barber was elected a Director in the room of Dr. Witt. Mr. Barton was elected Auditor to the Company.

An extensive sale of spirits was effected to-day by Mr. Charles Newton. The inferior qualities realized very low prices. For the higher classes, the average sales were fair.

As a matter so materially affecting the shipping interests of this port (where the desertions of seamen since the 1st of January may be estimated between four and five hundred), we have to refer to the fact that every constable of the Water Police force has given notice of his intention to resign.

HINT TO TALKERS.—Some men have got such a vein of talking, that it is their great business, and for which they neglect all business, so many hours in a day they snatch from all occasions on purpose to chat. This is more than can be justified. The Apostle blames it in the women of his day: "They learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house, and not only idle but tattlers also, and busy bodies, speaking things which they ought not." And sure it is more to be reproved in men, that should be more staid, and much better employed. But the tongue is not only wont to take the hands off from business, but to take upon it the business of the hands; as in the great duty of distributing to the poor, that will serve them with good words, when the hands should be ministering good things; the vanity of which he upbraids. James ii. 15, 16. And so it is apt to run all religious offices into mere talk, which is like grain that has only a stalk.

Splendid Farm on Para Creek, Fairy Meadow, close to Wollongong Illawarra District.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th March, at 11 o'clock,
The following Valuable Property:—About 50 acres of the richest land in Illawarra, namely, 16¼ acres in one block, bounded by Para Creek in such a manner that 20 rods of fence from bank to bank of the Creek, encloses the whole. It is all cleared, and consists of the richest quality of soil, having produced upwards of 50 bushels of barley to the acre; it was originally a cabbage tree flat covered with ferns, and one corner is now laid out as a Vegetable Garden.
The improvements comprise a Slab-built Cottage, shingled and plastered, formerly occupied by Dr. Whittle. It is substantially built on sleepers, and contains 4 rooms, and around the Cottage are several peach and orange trees.
It is situated about a mile from Wollongong, and about 50 rods from the Fairy Meadow Road.
Together with the above, will be sold, 33¼ acres, commencing on the opposite side of Para Creek, and entering to Colonel Leahy's fence, or Terathem boundary, being a portion of Bolan's Original Grant.
This block of land is of the same character as the preceding; it is all enclosed, and subdivided into 4 paddocks. About 16 or 17 acres have been under cultivation in grain crops, and have now a fine crop of clover thereon, and about £40 worth of fencing has been recently erected.
The improvements consist of a slab barn, not quite finished. It is floored, and has a skeleton roof upon it, but not covered in.
 It is seldom so choice a portion of land is brought into the market as the above. The road from the homestead to Wollongong is a first-rate one, scarcely a mile in length, and the Fairy Meadow property has acquired a name of some importance in a district peculiarly eminent for its productive soil. The first lot is nearly an island, and might be converted into a most charming retreat, and the whole offers a spot for the retired gentleman seldom to be met with.
Plans on view at the rooms.
Terms at sale.
N.B.—Parties desirous of inspecting the property will please apply to Mr. Edward Gibbons, Fairy Meadow.

WEDNESDAY, 15th March.
Choice Country Property.
20 Acre Farm at Shrimpton Creek, Kissing Point, Parramatta River, adjoining the Orchard of Messrs. Short and Sheild, and near the Properties of Messrs. Small, Moore, Weekes, &c., about 2 miles from the Wharf on the River.

A Building Allotment on the Parramatta Road, at Burwood, having 50 feet 2 inches road frontage, by 150 feet depth, more or less, being No. 1 on the Plan of Sale, of 6th July, 1840.
PURKIS and LAMBERT are instructed by the Executors of the late Mr. James M'Laughlin to sell the above by public auction, at their Rooms, 451, George-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th instant, at 11 o'clock precisely.
These properties occupy choice positions on the River and Road. They were selected by the late Mr. M'Laughlin, which circumstance the auctioneers take to be sufficient evidence of their superiority in every respect, whether it is for cultivation, rental, or occupation, or for a speculative purchase, to be brought forward in a future stage of the land market. The railway line through Burwood is just at the back of this property—that great work is now steadily progressing towards completion — and it only requires a portion of it to be in use to effect a wonderful revolution in the value of all properties within its influence. That influence will affect all country lands; for they must benefit by being brought nearer to Sydney, the grand centre of commerce for all the Australian colonies, possessing a harbour which cannot be equalled on the coast, and which is capable of sustaining the fleets of the world both naval and mercantile.
KISSING POINT, PARRAMATTA RIVER.
All that piece or parcel of Land, situate, lying, and being, at Kissing Point, in the parish of Hunter's Hill, in the county of Cumberland, in the colony of New South Wales, containing twenty acres, more or less, and bounded on the north by a line commencing at a point in Shrimpton's Creek, and bearing west 31 degrees, north 17 chains 70 links; on the west by a reserved road 50 links wide bearing south 33 degrees, west 10 chains 45 links; on the south by a reserved road bearing east 32 degrees, south 19 chains 80 links to Shrimpton's Creek: and on the east by Shrimpton's Creek to the point of commencement.
This 20 acre farm is situate on Shrimpton's Creek, to which it has frontage of 11 chains, more or less, and adjoins the orchards of Messrs. Short and Shield, and is in the immediate neighbourhood of the well-known properties of Messrs. Small, Moore, Weekes, &c., &c.
It is distant about two miles from the wharf on the Parramatta River. As the water in Shrimpton's Creek has never been known to fail in the driest season, and as the farm is further well watered by a chain of ponds passing through it, it preserves the advantage of a good supply of water.
Five acres of the farm have been fenced off, and parts partially cleared.
BURWOOD.
All that piece or parcel of land, situate, lying, and being at Burwood, in the Colony of New South Wales, bounded on the north by the Parramatta Road, 50 feet 2 inches; on the east by a line, south 3 degrees, west 150 feet; on the south by lot No. 11 on the plan exhibited at the sale thereof by auction on the 6th July, 1840, 50 feet; and on the west by lot No. 2, on the said plan, 151 feet 9 inches, being lot No. 1 on the said plan exhibited at the said sale thereof.
TERMS.—25 per cent. cash deposit, the residue by approved bills at 3 months, bearing 5 per cent. interest.
. Particulars of title may be had on application to Messrs. Dunsmure and Stafford, Solicitors, 325, Castlereagh-street.

WEDNESDAY, 15th March.
Choice Building Ground close to the city.
Eight Allotments in Lambert-street, George Town, Camperdown, opposite the Red Lion Inn, at O'Connell Town, Parramatta Road—being Nos. 3, 4, 5, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 of section No. 3, on plan of sale by Mr. Mort, on 19th January, 1853, each 24 feet frontage by depths varying from 80 to 90 feet.
PURKIS and LAMBERT have been favoured with instructions to sell the above valuable land, at their Rooms, 451, George-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th instant, at 12 o'clock precisely, as per plan, on view at their Sale Rooms.
It is unnecessary to enter upon a tedious panegyric of these truly desirable allotments, around which improvements are constantly being made—for lying scarcely beyond the boundaries of the city, at only a few yards' distance from Parramatta Road, the only outlet from the city to all the leading roads of the colony, it is easy to perceive they must ultimately become almost as valuable as property lying in the city itself.
. In a few short years there will be no vacant land in this locality.
Terms.—One fourth cash deposit, the residue by approved bills at three months, dated from the day of sale, bearing 5 per cent. interest per annum.

WEDNESDAY, 15th March.
Devine's Concluding Sale.—A rare Chance for Working Men.—High rents avoided, and an Indisputable Title given to 32 Building Allotments close to Newtown, lying between Mr. Armitage's and Mr. White's Properties—being a portion of the late Mr. Nicholas Devine's Grant from the Crown—next to Erskineville House.
PURKIS and LAMBERT have received instructions from Mr. Edward Devine, the rightful owner of the above very valuable property, to sell the remaining lots by public auction, at their Rooms, 451, George-street, on WEDNESDAY, March 15th, at 11 o'clock precisely, according to the plan on view at their Sale Rooms.
Thirty-two choice BUILDING ALLOTMENTS, having a frontage to a street 22 feet wide,—the dimensions being to each allotment 45 feet frontage, by depths varying from 56 feet 6 inches to 65 feet. The street leads into a road branching out of the Newtown road at the Wesleyan Chapel; and one of the allotments has 56 feet 6 inches frontage to that road.
The Auctioneers beg to direct the particular attention of purchasers to the fact that the owner of this land is furnished with a complete and absolute title, and is free from further litigation—the lessors of the plaintiff in the ejectment case of Doe Dem. Devine against Wilson and others, joining in each conveyance as vendors.
. This land being in the immediate vicinity of Newtown, and adjoining Erskineville House, the allotments offer a site for building not to be surpassed in the neighbourhood of Sydney; and for salubrity of air and command of beautiful prospect are unrivalled—lying immediately opposite the line of railway, from which they are only a few yards distant.
The back allotments contain some of the best brick mould to be found in the colony, and the allotments are sufficiently large for two of them to form a very lucrative field of operation in that line.
As a suitable site for private residences the position is undeniably good. The rapidly improving suburb of Newtown, close to the city, is undoubtedly one of the most advantageous and desirable localities that could be selected for that purpose.
Parties wishing to have cheap homes, in a place abounding with good water, at a convenient distance from Sydney, will do well to profit by the chance here offered them. The omnibuses constantly ply on the Newtown and Cook's River road—which is decidedly one of the most agreeable out of the city. The whole will be sold without the slightest reserve to the highest bidder.
Terms, half cash; the residue on completion of the deeds.

Valuable and Substantial Property at Hyde Park Corner.
MR. A. POLACK will sell by auction, at his Rooms, Pitt-street, at 11 o'clock THIS MORNING, Thursday, the 2nd of March,
Two very valuable and convertible Allotments situated at the south-west corner of HYDE PARK, and immediately opposite Mr. Thacker's premises.

Lot 1 is a Corner Allotment, having 33 feet frontage to Liverpool-street, and 66 feet to Elizabeth-street, with 33 feet frontage to a side lane.
The situation of these allotments is one of the best in the whole city; and it is a well recognised fact that this part of Sydney is daily rising in importance as a place of business, and when the Railway Terminus, which is not very far from this locality, already in progress, is completed, property therein must be greatly enhanced in value.
Mr. A. POLACK, therefore, in presenting this property to the public, feels great confidence in giving it the benefit of his strong recommendation, and from the fact of its being a sale totally unreserved, it presents one of the most favourable opportunities for investment that has been offered to the public for a great length of time.
The terms, which will be liberal, will be declared at the sale.
A Plan on view at the Rooms of the Auctioneer.

Two Houses, situate in Riley-street, between William-street and Stanley-street, and about 100 yards from the former on the south side.
The front house is situate in Riley-street, and is built of stone, it contains two rooms and kitchen, and is at present let at 20s. per week.
On the back of the allotment, fronting Crown-lane, is erected a brick house containing three rooms and kitchen, built upon a stone foundation, let at present at 30s. per week, which lease has ten months to run from 1st April next.
The allotment on which these houses stand has a frontage to Riley-street of 26 feet, and to Crown-lane of 26 feet, by a depth of 100 feet 6 inches between the two; and the space between the two houses is divided into two yards, with the usual out offices. There is a capital well of water situated for the use of both premises.
There have been few investments of late offered to the public better than houses of the description above, which generally yield from 12 to 15 per cent. upon money laid out. Requiring but few repairs and always sure of a tenant, are important advantages in household property, independent of which the situation of the premises are first-rate.

Thirty Acre Farm (30¾ acres) Illawarra District, only three miles from Wollongong.
MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on WEDNESDAY, 15th March, at 11 o'clock,
A capital farm, containing 30 acres 3 roods of land, within three miles of Wollongong, and adjoining the coal property of Henry Osborne, Esq., and Keelogues, lately belonging to her Majesty's Attorney-General.
This land is of the most fertile description, equally adapted for ordinary farming purposes, or for the residence of a country gentleman. It commands a beautiful prospect of the ocean, Five Islands, and surrounding country.
It contains hard timber for fencing and building, together with a considerable quantity of cedar, and there is an abundance of pure unfailing water.
The improvements consist of a newly erected hut, and a portion of the land cleared, on which is now growing about an acre of corn equal to any in the district.
Parties desirous of inspecting the farm can apply to Mr. Egan, Mount Keira.
The above is a choice locality, well situated for salubrity and fine scenery. Another spot in this Garden of Eden fit for a gentleman's retreat, and worthy the attention of any party having a few pounds to invest with a certainty of turning it to good account.

A vessel of this description can be turned to so many profitable uses in a port enjoying so much commercial business as Sydney does, that comments on her capabilities would be out of place, beyond a mere statement as above.
Inventory of her stores, &c., can be seen at the Rooms of the Auctioneers.

Two capital Houses, Balmain, situate in Waterview Bay.
MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on TUESDAY, March 21st, at 11 o'clock,
The following choice properties;
LOT 1.
The House and Grounds occupied by Wm. Meadows Brownrigg, Esq., Surveyor, situated on the heights overlooking Waterview Bay and the Parramatta River, &c. The land is nearly half an acre, substantially enclosed, and laid out as a garden and shrubbery, stocked with choice fruit trees.
The House, which is built of stone, contains 6 rooms, with cellar beneath, and a verandah round the four sides. There is a detached kitchen, with room above and room adjoining; also a poultry yard, and yard attached to the house.
LOT 2.
House and Grounds occupied by J. W. Cheeseborough, Esq., adjoining Lot 1 on one side, and the property of Mr. Reynolds, Boat Builder, on the other. The Land, which contains an area of about a quarter of an acre, has a frontage to Waterview Bay of about 46 feet, on which is a stone wharf, and is laid out as a garden and shrubbery. The house is built of stone, has a verandah in front, and contains 8 rooms, with kitchen and servants' room above. There is a well of capital water, and the entrance to the premises is from Duke-place.
. There are few spots in that favourite suburb of Sydney more retired than the houses now offered for sale, which are situated scarcely a minutes' walk from the steamboat ferry, and about the same distance from the boat ferry in Darling-street, facing Millers' Point, which will shortly be the principal point of communication between Sydney and Balmain.
Both houses are adapted for the residence of respectable families—the one having the advantage of site and view, the other of water frontage, and facilities for sea bathing—the whole offers a first-rate investment for money, because they are houses always in demand and must ensure tenants.
Plans on view at the Rooms.

A Farm of 100 Acres, situate at the confluence of Limeburner's Creek, with the River Hastings, close to the township of Port Macquarie, well adapted for agricultural purposes.
This land was selected about 14 years ago by a first-rate judge, both on account of the locality and the nature of the soil; it subsequently became a prize in the Bank of Australia lottery, and the purchaser at this sale may rely upon getting the worth of his money, as it must turn out of great value when steam communication with the port becomes regular and constant.
